Dark Horse to return 'Nexus' to creators Mike Baron, Steve Rude

Dark Horse Comics has acquired all trademark and copyright ownership of Nexus from First Publishing and plans to return ownership to Mike Baron and Steve Rude, creators of the characters.

When First Publishing announced a shift of direction away from its super-hero and adventure titles in March to focus on Classics Illustrated and other projects aimed at the burgeoning educational and literacy markets, Nexus readers began to ask what would happen to the long-running series created by writer Mike Baron and artist Steve Rude. The Dark Horse acquisition followed weeks of negotiation between Dark Horse Publisher Mike Richardson and First Publishing Publisher Rick Obadiah.

"The deal is the culmination of an ongoing series of talks between Mike and me that began with the licensing of a Nexus miniseries to Dark Horse last May," Obadiah said. "Dark Horse has proven itself to be a very aggressive competitor displaying considerable market savvy in its choice of properties. Mike Baron and Steve Rude and everyone at First are very pleased that Nexus has found such a good home."

Nexus began its run with Capital Comics in 1983. The title was picked up by First the fol-

Byrne's 'Next Men' #1 to have silver cover

By Maggie Thompson

"My Next Men #1 will have a silver-embossed cover," John Byrne said Sept. 26. He writes and draws the title for Dark Horse Comics. Where did he get the title? "It just came to me one day. And I said to myself, 'You've got to be kidding. No one's used this yet?' "

The first issue is scheduled to ship Jan. 21, but the cost will be what Byrne termed "the usual Dark Horse $2.50 for the title with no non-Dark Horse ads."

Dark Horse Marketing Director Bob Schreck said, "One of the tags we use on this series is 'Beyond mutants — there are John Byrne's Next Men.' We're going to give retailers a promotional Next Men poster

Sotheby's auction list is complete

Art by McCay, Herriman, Hogarth, Sprang, Eisner, Craig, Feldstein, Frazetta, Barks, Ditko, Crumb, Kurtzman, more

By Maggie Thompson

The Sotheby's comics auction scheduled for Dec. 18 in New York City has closed its books for the auction; all submissions are in, and the catalog is in preparation.

Auction consultant Jerry Weist said in a phone interview Sept. 25, "The auction is history now for submissions, because the galleys for the catalog have been sent to the printer, but there's already talk about doing a comics auction in 1992, if this one if successful.

"If it goes well, people who have items will want to get in line early for next year's event; that sort of thing has happened before with this sort of auction."

The catalog, which will be available in hardcover and softcover format, will, in general, run three illustrations per page of the material which will be sold.

"The catalog is looking fabulous and will probably be out in time for Halloween," Weist continued. "There will be a formal reception when it does, a media event for it on Rodeo Drive in Hollywood. I think we'll be displaying only about 10% of what will be in the New York show, but it will let people on the West Coast get a look at what's being offered."

He described original art submitted for auction by its creators. "These are the artists who have personally come in with their own material. They're getting the benefits of the financial reward and exposure; in these cases, it is the artist who produced the work who is offering it.":

• Burne Hogarth: "He sent in two of his Sunday Tarzan pages — and has even entered the Hal Foster Tarzan page for Dec. 6, 1936. That was the strip sent to him by King Features to study when he took over the strip. Included with the Foster strip will be a letter from Hogarth discussing its historical placement."

• Dick Sprang: "Dick has come on board with a fabulous recreation of his cover for Detective Comics #91; this is the first time he's done a new painting of that cover."

• Will Eisner: "We didn't know until the very last minute, but we can say with joy in our hearts that Will Eisner is on board. He sent a seven-page Spirit story, 'The Return,' from Aug. 14, 1949. It has all the landmark special comics effects you connect with Eisner. He also sent a two-page splash cover painting from one of the Kitchen Sink Spirit issues."

• Johnny Craig: "He has recreated the cover of of Vault of Horror #23 in oil on canvas and has also entered a proof set of Vault of Horror covers; few people knew they existed."

• Al Feldstein: "One of the stars of the show is the recreation of the cover of Weird Fantasy #15 by Al Feldstein: a knockout. I'm sitting in front of it right now; it's filled with deep blues and gorgeous reds and greens. It's large, painted about twice up."

• Harvey Kurtzman: "He's brought in eight original pages people have never seen before, a visual delight for the catalog. Kurtzman tried to sell the concept of the graphic novel in 1959 with this sequence out of Charles Dickens' Christmas Carol. It's a scene with Jacob Marley — and there's even a page of the same sequence by Jack Davis. The whole thing is done in color paintings."

• Frank Frazetta: "We have a

WAM members get comic-book coupons

The Wild Agents of Marvel fan club will soon launch the first in a series of comic-book coupon offers available exclusively to its members. Two coupons redeemable for new comics will be contained in the second issue of the Marvel fan club's newsletter, distributed to all registered WAM members in January.

"We're really excited about this program for many reasons," said WAM Manager Dwight Jon Zimmerman. "But perhaps the most important reason of all is that this offer shows our members that we really are planning special things for them.

"In the course of an annual membership, each WAM member will receive coupons worth a total of approximately $25 towards the purchase of Marvel comics and/or merchandise. When you consider that a membership only costs $13 a year, that means not you not only get a great membership kit; you also get almost double the membership fee in coupons.

"So it really does pay for every Marvel fan to become a member."

He said the Wild Agents of Marvel staff was in the final stages of deciding which comics will be part of the initial coupon redemption offer.

"We will have the selection finalized in time for the Marvel Comics Annual Distributor meeting at the end of October. In addition, we will at that time also have details on the coupon redemption procedure available for distributors and retailers, to ensure the whole program goes smoothly."

On a related note, Zimmerman said the release date of the 1991 membership kits had been set for the middle of October. "We had some technical problems which pushed back our projected release date," he added, "and we apologize to everyone who sent in checks and is impatiently waiting for kits. I know how you feel, because I'm one of those people waiting, too.

"All the early birds who sent in their applications when we first announced WAM can be assured that their memberships have been extended accordingly. It's the least we can do for our fans with the low membership numbers."

Introduction: Night Wynd Enterprises

By Eiwin Mark

Welcome to a preview of Night Wynd Enterprises' first four comic-book titles, which make their debut this week at your local comic-book store. The following are sample pages from the first issues of each of our titles:

China Sea takes place in the South Pacific with our hero, Troy Adams, racing against time to stop a drug cartel from unleashing an awesome mystical force upon Asia to secure its position as the most powerful crime organization in the East.

Kimura sees the return of Hotachi Kimura, who comes out of retirement when an evil scientist's murderous creation goes on a killing spree in New York's Chinatown. Hotachi decides to take matters into his own hands with the help of his sister, Gennin.

Stardusters is an interstellar adventure where young Tapiet enlists the aid of Capt. Rigell to deliver vital information necessary to stop a deadly dimensional wave that threatens to unify the characteristics of every alien race into one primitive populace.

Elfheim, Barry Blair's trademark fantasy story, continues where Elflord left off. Hawk Erickson returns to Greenhaven to experience first-hand the corruption under King Bran's leadership. Now a hunted outlaw, Hawk reunites Windblade, Turo, Purebreeze, Falcon, and Mr. McTutt to instill justice in his own swashbuckling fashion.

Cranky Old Man from Tulsa by R.A. Lafferty. United Mythologies Press, P.O. Box 390, Station A, Weston, Ont. M9N 3N1, Canada, $3.95.* Reviewed by Robert Coulson.

This is a 25-page booklet which includes two fairly long interviews with R.A. Lafferty. One is by Darrell Schweitzer for Amazing in 1983, and a longer one is by R.J. Whitaker, which has apparently appeared in bits and pieces in several publications, but never before in its entirety. This enjoyable book is a bargin.

The interviews include a good bit of personal history, religious beliefs, dreams, and the usual material about influences, writing history, style, etc.

The answers, however, aren't at all usual. "Why do I kill so many people?" (In his fiction, that is.) "Oh, it's partly to help out their survivors and next of kin. These get double indemnity when the characters are killed."

Platonic covers

By John Douglas

[The following dialogue, recorded by Plato, was recently discovered in a cave, along with a double-bagged copy of The Khi-Men*.]*

Persons of the dialogue: Socrates and Plato.

Scene: Both sit on a large rock, facing each other in the shade of a fig tree.

Socrates: Let us imagine a company which sells comic books with multiple covers of the same issue — 10 different covers.

Plato: OK.

Socrates: Let's also imagine that each of the comics comes sealed in opaque bags of sheep stomach, and each bag is identical.

Plato: Yes.

Socrates: Inside each of these bags, which we cannot see through, is a set of trading cards, 10, out of a total series of 100. Each set is placed in the bag at random, so buying all 10 covers does not necessarily mean that you own all 10 sets of the cards.

Plato: I . . . understand.

Socrates: Assume our friend, Diogenes, goes into the local comics shop and buys 10 copies of the aforementioned comic book. How can Diogenes be sure that 1) he has purchased all 10 covers and 2) he owns all 10 sets of the cards, completing the series? Remember, the bags are opaque and identical.

Plato: The answer is simple, Socrates: He opens the bags and looks inside.

Socrates: Ah, but by opening the bags they will no longer be "Pristine Mint," and Diogenes would never do that.

Plato: I see. Then he should buy 100 copies of the comic book, thereby increasing the odds that he does own them all.

Socrates: Diogenes is no barrel of money; he could not afford to buy that many copies of the comic book. But then again, who could?

Besides, even if he purchased 100 copies of the issue, how would he know that he owns all 10 covers and the entire series of cards and not just 100 copies of the same?

Plato: I see your point, Socrates. Maybe Diogenes could just believe he owns the 10 covers and sets of cards.

Socrates: No, Diogenes is much too cynical to believe that.

Plato: You are right. I am sorry, Socrates, but I do not know the answer to your riddle. What should Diogenes do?

Socrates: Get a life!

Mike W. Barr

Ordinarily I'd attach no more importance to the flatulence of a critic who withheld his identity than I would to the actions of a vandal who left a burning bag of feces on my doorstep (CBG #932, 9/27/91). However, "Name Withheld" is screaming so loudly that some readers may attribute far more moment to his letter than it deserves — thus this response.

(Actually, "Name Withheld's" identity is fairly easy to make an edúcated stab at, due to clues within his letter itself. But let's humor him, as we humor the ostrich who thinks it's hidden when it sticks its head in the sand.)

N.W. was actually replying to my own letter (CBG #930, 9/13/91), in which I had merely had the temerity to point out that not all — in fact, not even most — artist-writers are the gifts from God they think they are. N.W., obviously an artist-writer who smelled the wax on his wings melting, took it upon himself to slap me back in line, mostly by spewing venom and misstating my own points.

N.W., in an attempt to draw fire from the real issue, writes: "Most of the stories [in current comics] are recycled from previous issues and recent movies." From his tone, it could be construed that I had defended this practice. In fact, N.W. brought it up. For the record, I find this practice every bit as tedious as N.W. does; I also find artist-writers every bit as guilty of this as "just" writers. N.W. continues: "Is it any wonder that artists are waking up and deciding to [write] themselves? Our point is a simple one: We're saying to the Mike Barrs of the world that we don't need you and, more than that, we don't want you."

I am in entire agreement with this statement, though not in the way N.W. may think (and I use the term loosely). The current trend in comics — and both N.W. and I seem to agree in this, though he thinks it's a good sign and I don't — is for art to be emphasized over story. Lately, gimmickry has taken precedence even over art, so that all that is necessary to sell a new comic book is a glitzy marketing approach, raher than a good story. Being every bit as modest as N.W., I will point to Camelot 3000 as an example of the latter, a nearly-extinct species. It was sold — and sold very well — on the triune approach of format, concept, and art. Nowadays, however, new series are sold by the empty calories of multiple covers, trading cards, hermetic seals, or holograms.

In this climate, "real" writers like myself (to quote N.W.) are not needed, for stories are not bing sold, gimmickry is. However, I predict a time — maybe next week, maybe next year, but soon — when this approach will cease to function. When that happens, publishers will be forced to return to stories to sell comics, rather than gimmickry. That's when they'll need "real" writers. Nowadays, anyone can sell the first issue of a comic book, even N.W.

N.W. speaks glowingly of the creations of artist-writers, but he heaps a lot of dross in with the gold. (Not to mention the silver. The visual for The Silver Surfer may have been created by Jack Kirby, but it took Stan Lee to imbue the character with the personality and dialogue that made him so popular. Again we see the whole greater than the sum of its parts generated by an artist and a writer working in tandem, as partners. Can you imagine The Silver Surfer spouting typical Kirby dialogue? "It's me, groovesters, young but cool Silvy!")

Elektra, Mr. A., and Ronin are great characters, but they don't belong anywhere near such one-joke premises as many of the others named — among which we'll find at least one "creation" of N.W. himself. To paraphrase my favorite quote from the 1988 election season, "Name Withheld, you're no Frank Miller." (Nor, for that matter, is he anywhere within a light-year of becoming an Alan Davis or a Dan Jurgens, though he stands a great chance of becoming comics' Dan Quayle, an incompetent who is trying to run before he can walk. But not, unfortunately, before he can talk.)

I find N.W.'s slap at editors not only a blatant sterotype and therefore unfair but unworthy of consideration coming from a man (and I speak only in the biological sense) who refuses to sign his name to his claim. When N.W. has grown up and learns to take responsibility for his actions, we'll talk as the equals he assumes we are.

Returning to my original letter, which also dealt with the issue of capital punishment, Don and/or Maggie wrote: "If you are incensed to the point of demanding the death penalty at the comparatively small amount you pay for keeping Charles Manson incarcerated, what punishment would you wreak on the savings-and-loan bandits who are costing you far, far more?" And later: "Should the government be conducting vendettas for its citizens?" Still later, in referece to James [sic?] Dahmer: "The kneejerk reactionaries are demanding the death penalty be instituted regardless of the facts that (a) it wouldn't apply in this case because you can't institute a penalty after the crime has been committed . . ."

In response, I will say that my outrage at the cost of keeping Manson alive was more symbolic than literal, though nonetheless real. In the case of the savings-and-loan bandits, I recall that in the old West horse thieves were often hanged, since a man's horse was considered necessary for daily life. In that vein, I can certainly see capital punishment extended to include men who have made a normal life for their victims impossible. No, the government should not be conducting "vendettas" for its citizens, but every citizen deserves a guarantee that any act against him will be investigated with the goal of retribution in kind. On Jeffrey Dahmer: When should a penalty for a crime be instituted, if not after its commission?

However, these are differences between reasonable persons of good

[You are, of course, aware that, while a penalty can only justly be carried out after a crime is committed, it is a violation of the foundations of the U.S. judicial system to make something illegal after the fact (ex post facto) — otherwise, someone could make it a crime tomorrow to have written a futuristic version of Le Morte d'Arthur in comic-book form and you could be penalized for something that was legal when you did it.]

Steve Sullivan

I won't defend Mike W. Barr, as I'm sure with such a broad target to strike back at he'll do a fine job himself. But did it strike anyone else as ironic that the oh-so-brave Nameless Artist chose to lead off his essay complaining about lack of originality in writing with two hoary cliches?

Peter David

I appreciate John McCool's efforts to ride chivalrously to his wife's defense. I also appreciate his kindly providing two examples of subjects discussed in my column: a) People who just don't "get it"; b) taking insult at something where no insult was conceivably intended. Although his letter prompts response, it doesn't seem to warrant a column, so I'll reply in the forum to which his remarks were addressed.

Apparently I haven't made myself sufficiently clear for casa McCool, so I'll make one last stab at it. (I.e., don't worry, folks — this is my final word on the subject. If any of the Philly folk care to respond, they have the field to themselves. I officially withdraw after this.)

The McCools seem to be under the impression I take no responsibility for what I write. I don't recall saying that. If I did, then I misspoke. I take responsibility for everything in my column — even the stuff I didn't write.

They also seem to feel that taking responsibility means being upset and apologetic if people are offended. That I have an obligation to be — for want of a better word — nice. Here we part company.

"But I Digress," from its inception, has had three purposes: 1) to entertain; 2) to make people think; 3) to serve as a forum for my opinions.

I will not apologize if someone isn't entertained, no matter what the reason.

I will not apologize if someone doesn't like what they're being made to think about or feels a subject shouldn't be raised.

I will not apologize if someone doesn't like my opinion.

That's not shirking responsibility. That's practicality. If I second-guessed myself about how people will react or anticipate and try to adjust for it, I would be unable to produce the column (which would suit some people just fine, I would imagine). This applies to everything, from the sophomoric jokes to the deeply personal discussions; from poking fun at John Byrne to the sincere compliments to John Byrne (which Madame McCool apparently never noticed); It all comes from the same place, and I take back none of it.

The only thing I will apologize for is if I disseminate misinformation or spell someone's name wrong.

I tried to make that clear at length. It would seem the McCools didn't get it. I hope they do now.

As for the second aspect — taking insult where none was intended. If you seriously think I'm going to debate the semantics of the phrase "suffering from," check elsewhere. I've been that route with rape victim vs. rape survivor. Your daughter isn't suffering. Mazel tov. I am sincerely happy for all of you. I refuse your challenge. You can keep that particular chip securely on your shoulder with no argument from me. Nice photo, by the way, although I should point out the lovely assortment of "Hulk" T-shirts currently on the market.

As for "angry young men" — that sounds fine. I like the "young" part especially, and as for the angry part — you'd have to be oblivious or simply stupid not to be angry over much of what's happening in the world. I've certainly been called worse things — by you and your wife, as a matter of fact, whereas the strongest thing I did was compare your wife to a renowned and witty etiquette columnist. So who's naughty and who's nice, eh?

John Byrne

First off, it wasn't me, so still those wagging tongues. With all the hot water I've got myself into over the past few years by exprssing my opinions in CBG, it's far too late to close that particular barn door by having my missives printed anonymously.

Like the other tongue waggers, though, I have speculated, to myself and with others, as to the identity of the writer of the nameless note in "Oh, So?" for CBG #932. Of the writer-artits I know personally, there is not a one who, in my opinion, would not have signed his or her name to the letter. Of those I don't actually know, the fact that some of the lamest characters ever created are included on the list of glowing contributions to the medium made by writer-artists tends to point the arrow in one very specific direction. But, hey, if the writer didn't have the stones to put his — presumably — name to the letter, I'm not going to dignify his cowardice by continuing the guessing game.

Whoever wrote the letter was way out of line, anyway. For an artist (on the evidence) to accuse writers — any writers — of recycling old storylines is perhaps the most extraordinary example of pot-calling-the-kettle-black-think I have encountered in nearly 20 years in this wild and wacky business we call funny books. Most artists — including myself — couldn't draw line one if we weren't cribbing from somebody who went before, or, in some instances, came after. The greats (Kirby, Ditko, Eisner, Kubert, Swan, Adams, et al.) loom large in the minds of each and every one of us, and even those whose eyes were wide enough to see beyond the confines of comic books will confess influences in almost every aspect of what they do. Nobody hits the ground running, folks. Even Todd MacFarlane, who has the most original — and most imitated — style to come along in a good many years, cites loads of influences, including yours truly.

As far as the importance of the artist over the writer, I've long maintained that no one has ever seen a comic book on the rack and said to him-or-herself, "My, that comic book looks well written!" It's the pictures that catch the eye — as good an explanation as any of why so many comic-book covers have been done by artists other than those who did the insides. You'll note, for example, that I always put the penciller and inker before me in the credits of comic books I write.

But the pictures alone will not bring the readers back. Note I say "readers" here. Not zombies, of any species. The Dweebs who buy 57,000 copies of the latest issue of Fonebone Man, sealing them forever in Mylar, simply because the latest hot artist happens to have drawn the pictures — well, the fact that I call them dweebs suggests the high level of respect I have for these people. (It's such a relief to be able to say something like this without the fear of being accused of sour grapes. Now that I script the two X-Men comic books, I've become, once again, a part of this insanity. That doesn't mean I have to like it, though. I'd much rather have lower sales — as we did when Chris and I were doing the series, Entertainment Weekly notwithstanding — and the sure knowledge that each and every one of those issues was actually being read by a human being.)

The very best comic books happen when there is a synthesis of words and pictures. Usually — though not always — the best way to achieve this ideal state is to have the words and pictures emanating from the same brain. Sometimes — Lee-Kirby, Lee-Ditko, O'Neil-Adams, even — yes — Claremont-Byrne — this can be achieved with two separate brains who somehow manage to mesh perfectly, even when there may be profound personality conflicts at every other point.

Often the writer-artist alone produces a mountain of self-indulgent dreck that overshadows whatever brilliance may have been produced in partnership with a writer. Sometimes, without being actually bad, the work of a writer-artist is so pale by comparison with the team-produced work it simply seems bad.

Bottom line: There are brilliant writer-artists. There are brilliant writers. There are also a whole lot of hacks on both sides of that particuar fence, and a glance at the slush-pile of product currently pouring out of The Big Two is enough to tell anyone that the vast majority of the work is being done by those hacks.

The sad fact is — and I suspect this is the situation in the case of your anonymous correspondent — most of the hacks are completely oblivious to the fact that they are hacks. And that, of course, means there is little or no hope they will ever get better.

Oh, and in keeping with my new crusade to save unnecessary use of stamps, I am fully aware that each and every nasty thing I have said here is, in the minds of legions of comic-book fans, completely applicable to myself and my work.

Eclipse Staff Shows Off In Minneapolis

Beau Smith, Ted Adams Attend Minnesota Con, Visit With Local Retailers

Eclipse national sales manager Beau Smith and distribution manager Ted Adams attended Minnesota Con September 21-22, visiting Minneapolis-St. Paul retailers on the preceding Friday.

"We were [at the convention] along with Marvel, DC, Kitchen Sink, and CBG," Smith notes. "It was a good turnout professionally.

"Tim Bradstreet was in attendance, and he signed books and talked to Dragon Chiang admirers. It's hard not to pay attention to Tim, who's about six foot seven—and if you don't pay attention, you better," Smith says.

"Everybody's interested in The Spider. That's the big thing everywhere," Adams says. "Spider #3 shipped the Friday before the show opened, so we could assure everyone that it would be in the comics shops the following week."

"At one point at the Eclipse booth there were John Davis of Capital City, Bill Newhouse of Diamond, CBG publisher Greg Loescher, and Kitchen Sink's John Koenig, all discussing the current state of affairs in comics. It was one of those rare occasions when people momentarily put aside company alliances and try to come up with ways to improve the whole industry," Smith says.

"We told everyone about our upcoming projects," Adams says, "and they were very interested in the Savings and Loan Scandal trading cards as well as Yattering and Jack, Age of Desire, and Revelations—three upcoming Clive Barker projects.

art © 1991 Timothy Truman and Timothy Bradstreet

"We also met with CBG publisher Greg Loescher, editors Don and Maggie Thompson, and sales representatives Tina Ellingson and Julie Stuempfig. They had some very exciting plans which I'm sure we'll be hearing a lot about in the coming months.

"Beau and I visited the College of Comic Book Knowledge and Dreamhaven Books in Minneapolis-St. Paul," Adams says. "Both shops had a wide range of Eclipse titles and seemed to do well with our more adult titles."

Smith notes that, like most college towns, even the smaller retailers they visited stocked Eclipse titles. Smith and Adams also went to local newsstands. "Shinders, a newsstand chain in Minnesota, is one of the biggest I've ever seen," Smith says. "They carry back issues of comics and are real big on trading cards. It was good to find out just how seriously midwestern retailers take Eclipse."

The convention, held in the Thunderbird Hotel, featured "a totem pole in front of the hotel," Smith notes, "and two thirty foot Indians. The rooms were decorated with tomahawks, stuffed animal heads, spears, shields, masks, papooses—heck, the con itself was held in the Hall of Tribes.

"Tim Truman would either think that this was just the greatest place in the world or blasphemy. Cat [Yronwode] would have written three Fit to Prints about it."

Eclipse Commits True Crime

Serial Killers Star In Planned Trading Card Set

Eclipse jumps into an all-new form of trading cards next year when they release their first set of True Crime cards, featuring portraits of real-life criminals.

"True Crime is the overall title of the series, and we're starting out with Serial Killers and Mass Murderers," says writer Valarie Jones. Jones is working with San Francisco Bay Area journalist Peggy Collier on the text for the cards, which are illustrated with watercolour portraits by artist Jon Bright.

Along with the more commonly known killers like Ted Bundy and Charles Manson, the 55-card set includes such infamous real-life characters as eleven-year-old Mary Bell, who killed and mutilated younger children in her neighborhood; Dr. Harry Holmes, proprietor of the "Murder Castle" in Chicago and responsible for the deaths of over 200 women; and the still-missing Green River, Washington, killer, who murdered 49 women between 1982 and 1984.

"Needless to say, I've taken a lot of ribbing over these cards," Jones says. "People keep asking me what I've got down in my basement.

"Jon's portraits are brilliant," she adds. "He really manages to catch the disturbing alien nature of the psychopath. You look at them, and you just know something's wrong with these people."

THIS IS FIT TO PRINT NUMBER 385: As you may or may not know, depending on how much you've ever stopped to think about it, one of the least celebrated jobs an editor in this business has is "getting reference."

If you haven't stopped to think about it at all, maybe i'd better explain that as it is used in the comics business, "reference" is more or less a synonym for "photographs."

Some artists call their reference "scrap," presumeably because much of it is collected in the form of bits of paper cut from magazines. Others label it a "swipe file," although that term should more properly be applied not to a collection of photos but to a collection of drawings by other artists one intends to copy without crediting them. A few artists refer to reference by the news-paper term "morgue," meaning a place where background material, including photos, from "dead" stories, are filed in case they might be needed in the future.

Most artists maintain reference files of technical subjects (weapons, cars, planes), exotic animals (geckos, zebras, elephants), architecture (the Taj Mahal, the Tower of London, the Eiffel Tower), and people in ethnic costumes (Zulus, Eskimos, United States Senators).

They need these photos in case they are given scripts in which they are asked to draw things they've never seen or which are too complicated to draw from memory. Some artists build three-dimensional models of cars and planes to draw from. Others actually collect the guns and swords they most often draw. (Tim Truman, for instance, whose various characters often shoot antique Lee-Enfield rifles, really owns one. He does not, however, own an AK-47. For that he uses scrap.)

Okay, so where do editors enter this equation? When we receive scripts that call for unusual locations or odd artifacts, such as—to give a couple of examples that have recently passed through this office—"a Medieval tannery" (Grimm's Fairy Tales) and "a 1953 Seeburg HF100G jukebox" (Aztec Ace mini-series), we first call the artists and ask if they have reference on the subject. If the answer is "no," we then call the writers and ask if they have any. If the answer is "no" again, we, the overworked editors, have to find it.

Can't get a photo of the Medieval tannery—they didn't have photos back then—but would a 15th century wood-cut do? Lucky for us the writer has a reproduction of this one in his own collection.

And that jukebox—well, we photographed one back when the Aztec Ace series first ran—are the negs still here or did we ditch them?

Naw, they're long gone.

No sweat. We can shoot new pictures. The juke is right down in cat and Dean's house, y'know—that's why Doug Moench gave Ace that model in the first place, 'cause cat owns one and Dean could photograph it for the artist.

Okay!

But wait—does anybody have a camera?

No one has a Polaroid, but Dean has a 35 millimeter. Only there's no film in it right now.

He could go down and buy film in town, come back to the house, shoot the juke, and then drive into Santa Rosa to get the roll developed at one of those one-hour joints.

No, there's not enough time for that before Fed Ex.

I know! How about sending Val Jones down to the house to drawn the darned thing?

Yeah, she's a good artist! And she's the editor of the new Ace mini-series, too, so it's her responsibility anyway. She can send her sketch along to the artist to copy from. How 'bout that?

Yeah, Val, how about that?

Heading this time by BRUCE MESERVEY

New Albums Available For Appleseed, Dirty Pair

Studio Proteus Series Collected

Manga fans have taken to heart the new album collections of Appleseed and Dirty Pair, two popular Eclipse/Studio Proteus titles. The collections, released in August, are selling so well that retailers are already calling in for reorders, says distribution manager Ted Adams.

Appleseed Book Three: The Scales of Prometheus is the third volume in Eclipse's translations of Masamune Shirow's prize-winning science fiction saga, in which Shirow continues to develop the background of his story, introducing a renegade flesh-eating bioroid on a rampage and a mad Muslim intent on seizing the power of the Hecatonchires system.

"Fans of Deunan and Briareos are bound to love this one," says series editor Fred Burke. Collection editor Valarie Jones notes, "I'd like to point out an error: I inadvertantly neglected to credit Greg S. Baisden, co-series editor on Appleseed Book Three. My apologies to Greg." Burke adds, "[The city-state] Olympus is a confusing enough place as it is, and sometimes it's even hard to keep track of the passing cavalcade of letterers and editors on Appleseed without a scorecard."

Animé fans and comics fans alike now count The Dirty Pair among their favourites, and the second Eclipse/Studio Proteus mini-series, by writer Toren Smith and artist Adam Warren, introduced a new character who won raves all around. Kei, Yuri, and Shasti, the assassin with a split personality, definitely make for Dangerous Acquaintances, the title of the second Dirty Pair collection.

Appleseed Book Three, a 224-page black and white softcover, retails for $13.95, with a $40.00 trade hardcover and a $75.00 signed and numbered limited edition also available.

have subscribed to CBG, I have come to rely on it to clue me in to upcoming comics, events, and various other attractions. I may have gotten more details or fewer sooner or later elsewhere, but at least CBG reliably informed me of the existence of nearly everything comics-related, until now.

I can see missing a small, local event here or there or the odd, unpublicized comic-book release, but when a comic book of which I am in awe, for which I'm sure I have seen high recommendations in CBG, is made into a major motion picture featuring a major star (OK, so maybe Robin Wiliams isn't Kevin Costner or Julia Roberts) and you miss it entirely, what am I to think? Don't think I haven't checked; I searched months into the past. There were no press releases printed, no "guess what they're doing with my/our creation" letters, no "visited the set and loved it" notes in Peter David's column; even Darrell McNeil's well-trained spies fell flat on their faces in this one.

What the heck, you ask, am I talking about? Well, let's see if you draw the same conclusion I did. Nearly a week ago I walked into the room just in time to see a movie title at the end of its TV promo. I was stunned. The next time I heard that promo begin, I raced into the room to see my suspicions confirmed. This is what I saw: A manic Robin Williams dressed in rags capering about a modern cityscape peopled with warriors and dragons, and the clincher, the title. Someone please tell me that "The Fisher King" is an obscure mythical or literary reference not dreamed up by Matt Wagner when he created his Mage series for Comico a few years back.

With all the people and press and everything involved in making a movie, how can we have been kept in the dark? Was Matt Wagner sworn to silence? Oh, well, I guess I'll just have to go off half-cocked and start looking for the time and place to catch this movie in my town. See you at the movies.

[We wouldn't call it obscure, but The Fisher King has been around at least since medieval days. Matt Wagner hasn't.

The Fisher King is an integral part of Arthurian legend — for those who never had the pleasure of reading Mage*, it is a modern reworking of the story of King Arthur and his associates, with Excalibur in this incarnation being a green baseball bat instead of a sword.*

The Fisher King was the guardian of various holy relics, including The Holy Grail and the spear which was thrust into the side of Jesus while he was on the cross. Because he had been wounded by that same spear — according to one account, he was speared as punishment for playing with one of the relics, the sword of King David — he was a less-than-perfect guardian, so a replacement had to be found, a person of surpassing purity. This turned out to be Sir Galahad.

The Fisher King was variously named King Pellam, Pelles, and Pescheour (when you pass along your folklore orally, confusion, contradiction, and inconsistencies abound). He (or his brother Alain — accounts differ) accompanied Joseph of Arimathea to Britain with the Grail and other holy relics. While Joseph fed the good people of the company by the simple expedient of putting the food in the Grail, which multiplied the morsels to supply food for all, this did not work for the sinners in the group. King Pellam (or Alain) caught a fish, which miraculously enlarged to the point where it fed all the sinners. For this feat, he became known as The Rich Fisher or The Fisher King.

Some accounts say that Alain was the original Fisher King but passed on the title to Pellam. Alain then went to France, where he began a line of descendants which eventually included Launcelot du Lac, better known as Sir Lancelot.

We have not yet seen the movie, so we don't know whether the legend is used literally or symbolically therein, but we do know that Matt Wagner would have a tough time collecting any royalties for use of the name.]

Cheryl Harris
Atlanta, Ga. 30326

Today, as I was paying for this week's new arrivals, the cashier in my comic-book store said, "Didn't you work for Marvel?" With a sinking feeling in my stomach, I replied, "Yes, I did last year." "Yeah, well, Carol somebody-or-other just died." I mumbled a few words about how I had just attended her memorial service and how she will be greatly missed in the industry. He then said, "Well, I never heard of this Carol Kalish until she died."

His last words echoed thoughts I had been having this whole time since I heard the news of Carol's death. Carol Kalish's name never appeared with any great frequency in the credit boxes of monthly comic books. Hers was not a name that was publicized as a guest attraction at comic-book conventions. Hers was not a sought-after autograph. Yet she probably had as great an impact (if not greater) on the industry as those whom fans clamor for.

But most fans and hired hands in comic-book stores never heard of Carol Kalish. Her passing doens't really mean a whole lot to them. But they have her to thank for many of the things today's comic-book readers and collectors take for granted.

And for those elements, both tangible and intangible, that she added to this industry, she will be missed. By many.

Adam Philips

Yesterday was a hard day. I attended the memorial for Carol Kalish and listened as friends and associates talked about her. The only thing missing from the day, I thought, was Carol herself, who would certainly have laughed at the stories being told.

I wanted to get up and say something myself but, to be honest, I was feeling both overwhelemed with emotion and afraid to speak before such a large group of people. So I'm taking the relatively easy way out by writing to you instead.

I'm one of the few people in attendance yesterday who had never actually worked with Carol. We taked about the possibility from time to time, but even though many friends of mine did work with her, I never did. I'm sorry not to have had that opportunity. I always respected Carol's business savvy and drive.

The things I will best remember about Carol, though, were her enthusiasm, her generosity, and her good humor. Carol was one of the first adult friends I had who took me and my ambitions seriously. Every time I told her of an idea I wanted to pursue, she told me it sounded great and gave me advice as to how I might go about it.

When I was in need financially or emotionally, Carol was there, ready, willing, and able to tell me that I would, indeed, make it, to lend support and even, once or twice, money.

Carol and I didn't agree on everything. Our tastes in music, comics, movies, and many other areas were very different. Nonetheless, we always enjoyed comparing our interests and enthusiasms.

The last time I saw Carol was about four months ago. At the time, my wife, Julia G. Roberts, and I were working on a comics-related project that we wanted to pitch to some publishers. When we decided we needed some advice on how we should proceed, the first person I thought of was Carol. She cheerfully agreed to meet us for lunch, even though it was clear that our project would probably not be something Marvel could publish.

Unfortunately, our schedules conflicted, and it took four or five tries to get together with her. Finally, we set a date: a Monday in June, I believe.

Things didn't go as planned for my wife and me. The woman who was taking care of our baby daughter had taken off to visit her family two weeks before; by the day of our meeting, it was obvious that she wasn't coming back. We had no choice but to bring nine-month-old Sophie with us to the lunch.

I had always heard that Carol didn't like children. In fact, I remember hearing that Peter David had introduced one of his daughters to his then-boss by pointing to Carol and saying, "Don't go near her. She bites." I had never seen any real evidence of this dislike, though, so we decided to take a chance.

Carol was surprised to see Sophie but cheerfully took us to lunch at a very nice, but also very crowded and noisy, restaurant which, naturally, did not have a high chair. All through the meal, Julia and I took turns holding Sophie as she squirmed. Meanwhile, Carol happily answered our questions.

Julia and I were worn out by the time lunch was over. While she packed Sophie's toys and snacks back into a bag and I tried to keep Sophie happy, Carol decided to get out of the restaurant. She grabbed our stroller and headed out to the sidewalk.

We followed a moment or two later and caught up with her. Carol stood on the sidewalk, a bemused look on her face, looked down at the stroller and back up at us and said, "You can't imagine how incongruous this feels."

Carol may not have liked children very much, but she did like people a lot. And I think that's how she saw Sophie: as a person.

I shouldn't have been surprised at Carol's willingness to accept and enjoy the baby's presence. Carol was extremely flexible and always willing to try to enjoy a difficult or odd situation.

Another moment I'll never forget was the time Kurt Busiek and I dragged Carol — practically kicking and screaming — to see Aliens. We figured Ripley, the Sigourney Weaver character, would be a great new role model for Carol. Again, we should have known better: Carol thought Ripley was OK, but she really liked the big Alien queen bee monster.

Like many people I saw yesterday, I wish I had spent more time with Carol. We will all miss her.

I'd like to thank you for making CBG available as a forum to remember and celebrate Carol Kalish. My own feelings are a mixture of personal affection, professional admiration, and fan enthusiasm, so perhaps I am overly biased, but I can't get over the feeling that Carol was so very, very important, and now we have lost her. Apparently very many others feel this way as well. Then there are my feelings for Richard Howell — one of my favorite friends over the years — who has lost more than any of us will ever realize.

The sadness had been hitting me in gradually increasing waves since reading of Carol's death, but now, several days later, the shock is somehow more bearable, due largely to the effective memorial held in New York City this past Monday. Hearing so many vivid and touching thoughts about Carol from friends and colleagues, the value of these rituals starts to make sense, even while the fact of her passing is still unbelievable and unreal.

I knew Carol only casually, through my friendship with Richard Howell in the late '70s and early '80s. I met Rich when he was working and presiding as the resident comics guru at The Million Year Picnic in Harvard Square. He proved to me, by example, that comics still played a valuable role into adulthood, with proper perspective and appreciation. I originally went to Harvard hoping to find the sophisticated comics fans who had produced The Harvard Journal of Pictorial Fiction, not knowing they had already graduated by 1975. (One of them, Chuck Wooley, co-owned The Million Year Picnic and still gave an annual lecture on comics in an undergraduate course on the epic tradition in popular literature.)

I could easily have grown disenchanted with comics during those years if not for Rich and Carol, who brought a whole new variety of enthusiasm to the field — smart, discerning, respectful of the masters, and visionary. At the time, Carol appeared to my naive eyes to be the proverbial woman behind the man, and I envied Rich for having connected with this rarest of gems: a brilliant, funny, creative woman who loved comics, as well, right there on campus. Her beauty, incidentally, was not lost on me, nor was her charm. As I had found Rich to be, Carol was exceptional, and they struck me to be a natural pair.

In time I saw a bit more of Carol with Rich, in their home in Cambridge, around "the Picnic," and later in their offices where they produced Comics Feature, LOC, and other work. I experienced first-hand the inspiring and intimidating intellect, simple playfulness, sharp wit, enthusiasm, energy, and style that were described by so many at Carol's memorial. Maggie's brother, Paul, was the first at the memorial — and I think the most eloquent — to describe Carol's gift of making everyone else feel important in her presence. That was my experience, too, many years ago, even before she achieved her prominence in the field.

She was so impressive herself that when she spoke to you — direct, personal — and listened to you speak — thoughtful, attentive — it was a privilege. I was also lucky to catch glimpses of the world she shared with Rich, of dinosaurs, Disney, cats, country music, classic films, comics, and much more. During those early years I also saw in them the future of comics. (Rich and Carol were themselves early pioneers in independent comics, predating, I believe, Dave Sim's Cerebus.)

As I've followed her career through the pages of CBG and all-too-infrequent chats with Rich, I imagined that Carol was the unheralded guiding force shaping the incredible growth of the comics industry over the last 10 years. Listening to her colleagues speak on Monday and reading the memorials in your pages, it has become clear that she was, indeed, responsible for so much of comics' current success. It has been an incredible accomplishment, and I wouldn't believe any one person could have so much of an impact, except I had met Carol myself and experienced her wisdom and drive. Who else could have spanned the business and creative aspects of the industry so well? Who can carry on in her absence?

Sadly, I have had little contact with Carol and Rich over the last several years, which leaves me less fortunate than you and most others who speak of Carol now.

Ironically, I admit it is somehow heartening to read the many tributes and letters in CBG, as it was attending Carol's memorial, to realize that she was achieving all that I had hoped for her, and more. That she was so loved and respected by so many is thrilling, if not entirely consoling.

My first reaction was to the passing of someone I had known too slightly, who nevertheless had a profound impact on me many years ago and whose success I vicariously enjoyed over the years. Quickly my thoughts turned to Richard, who has been an inspiration to me, and so kind, and now must face a loss I could hardly begin to appreciate. Then comes the realization of how many individuals are also feeling this personal grief, as well as the void left in the comics industry. Again, I can imagine comics' future, but it is a much sadder vision.

Finally, I am thankful that Richard is being remembered, as well — that the good friends he and Carol cultivated over the years, in this world of comics they have devoted themselves to, will be there for him. It reminds me why I have remained a comics fan all these years. There is some bond among us, and the best of those who share our love of comics, like Carol and Rich, make us all the more fortunate.

Jackie Estrada

It was a pleasant surprise to read Mark Lucas's praise of the San Diego Comic-Con in the Aug. 16 "Oh, So?" It sounds like he really enjoyed the convention. Your readers may have been misled, however, by his statement that "Jackie Estrada and Bill Stoddard did a superb job in organizing this fair."

I'm not sure why he singled out Bill and me, as we are only two members of a very large committee that puts on the convention. Bill is the head of the programming staff, and I am publications editor, administrator of the Eisner Awards, and a PR coordinator. Perhaps we were particularly visible in our jobs, but dozens of other people are responsible for the smooth running of the convention. We have a 13-member board of directors, four vice presidents who supervise sub-areas of the convention, and some 39 department heads (with numerous associates and assistants) responsible for everything from registration to disabled services to special events. What's more, these people are all volunteers who work year-round to ensure that everyone has a great time during the con's four days.

We also have a hardworking president (John Rogers, who manages to run things despite holding down a full-time job), a frazzled treasurer (Carina Burns-Chenelle, who also works elsewhere full time), and a salaried general manager (Fae Desmond) who runs the Comic-Con office on a (more than!) full-time basis.

We on the San Diego Comic-Con committee are proud of the fact that ours is the only major convention put on by fans for fans, not for profit (all monies collected go toward the expenses of putting on the convention). It's gratifying to all of us that the attendees are happy with the results of our labor, and we hope that they are all aware that the event they have enjoyed is the product of efforts by many individuals and not just a few who may be more visible.

See you next summer in San Diego!

I would like to share with you the second most incredible dream I've ever had. It happened last month after I'd read a CBG with a letter from a professional who suffered a nightmare after reading the complete Watchmen. The same issue contained a photo of the owner of the Golden Apple store in Melrose.

In my dream, this gentlemen behind the counter turned into Aquaman. A female customer at the display case shrieked "We're all turning into fish!" as she became Lori Lemaris. A man at the other side of the store examining the comic wall screamed, "Let's get out of here!" as he metamorphosed into Sub-Mariner. "No, don't leave!" cried the manager. "Look!" He pointed outside, where all the pedestrians were carrying harpoons.

Meanwhile the new Sub-Mariner's female companion had changed into Namora. "Well, at least, this is the worst it gets," she said. "No it isn't!" yelled the disturbed manager Aquaman. "My stock boy is in the back-issue section and he's been reading Bill Sienkiewicz!" At which point who should burst through the back issue department into the main hall but Moby Dick.

It was at this point I woke up. Let me tell you that Moby Dick is one big fish.

[Obviously, we should consider a policy against running photographs of Golden Apple owner Bill Liebowitz.]

Like most everyone in the comic business, I too, am saddened by the untimely death of one of comicdom's greatest assets, Carol Kalish. This was a remarkable woman of intelligence, charm, and beauty who made everyone she talked to feel that she geninely cared about their opinions and ideas, and she always had a warm smile and kind word for everyone she met.

I will always be grateful to Capital City Distribution for giving me the opportunity to meet this wonderful woman.

Carol, you will be missed.

Craig Yoe

Sorry to hear about Carol. I feel a loss, having never gotten to know her. From what you and everybody says she must have been a great person. You — and she, when I saw her at ABA and San Diego — urged me to get together with her, but my schedule never permitted it. I'm sad.

Of course, your sadness is far greater, and you and her other close loved ones will remain in my thoughts.

One of the major reasons that I subscribe to CBG, and I've been a subscriber for five years now, is Tim Corrigan's "Fanzine Guide" column. I wish that I had kept records of its last appearance, but I know that it's been at the very least several months. I understand that Tim's column is not high priority and that it is used mainly as filler, but come on! CBG is a massive newspaper. Are we to really believe that room cannot be found to run this column more often? Small press is a vital and growing concern, and for CBG to ignore its contribution to the comic book world does not bode well.

All I ask if for a more concerted effort on your part to cover a wider variety of topics that pertain to the comics industry — information that we can actually use!

[Thank you for your kind words. We'd like to make a few comments, however, to wit:

• Tim Corrigan resigned as fanzine reviewer for reasons he did not wish to make public.

• We found a replacement for Tim but, because of problems of a personal nature beyond anyone's control, the replacement has not yet started reviewing.

• We do not regard Tim's column or any of our other columns as filler. We never have. If you "understand" that, you are getting your information from an unreliable source. "Filler" is your terminology, not ours.

• Please keep in mind that, far from our being opposed to covering fanzines (or small-press publishing, if you prefer), we thought up, titled, and instituted this column, pay money for it, and have kept it going through three reviewers (so far), all of whom have quit without notice. We are a bit touchy on this subject because no small-press publisher has ever thanked us for running this column and several have vilified us for not running columns more often than they have been written.]

Impel Marketing launches Trading Card Treats

Impel Marketing Inc. introduced Trading Card Treats, specially designed trading card mini-packs for Halloween and other special occasions, during the 1991 National Candy Wholesalers Association (NCWA) Summer Convention and Exposition, July 25-27 in St. Louis.

The new product, produced by Impel in cooperation with the National Safe Kids Compaign was featured at Impel's booth (#318) throughout the NCWA Convention at the Cervantes Convention Center.

Trading Card Treats will be sold in bags of 24 three-card packs, and feature six different trading card sets from kids' favorite characters: Marvel Universe Super Heroes, Archie, Official Universal Studios Monsters, Widget, Nintendo, and Inspector Gadget.

Trading Card Treats will be shipped to retail on Sept. 2.

huge, beautiful Frazetta painting, the cover to Vampirella #1. Vampi's in the buff; Frank later painted her costume off. He asked if we wanted the costume back on. Aesthetically, it's nice this way, but he said he would paint the costume back on, if the customer wanted."

• Murphy Anderson: "Murphy has come in with the cover to Mystery in Space #90. (I consider this the ultimate 'Adam Strange' cover — with Adam between Earth and Rann.) And he provided an early 'Captain Comet' splash page from the early '50s."

• Rob Liefeld: "He came in with complete art for X-Force #1."

• Jim Lee: As noted in CBG #934, Lee has entered the original art for X-Men #1.

• Bill Griffith "He came in with three major pieces, including the cover to Zippy #3 ('Nation of Pinheads') and 'Pertinent Points about Pinheads,' a sort of origin."

Other work which will be offered includes "some very powerful EC stories: Bernie Krigstein's 'Pipe Dream' and Jack Davis' 'Lone Stranger.'

"Right at the last minute, we got a Winsor McCay Little Nemo strip dated April 7, 1907.

"The Herriman estate has put in something spectacular: the Sunday page for Sept. 4, 1921, framed in a frame after the personal design of a frame that Herriman himself hand-painted — painted by his granddaughter. That will be accompanied by another, smaller framed piece: a letter of personal condolence sent by Walt Disney to George Herriman's wife at Herriman's death — talking about Herriman's place in history.

"We have a never-used Superman vignette from the Shuster studio in the 1940s. It's vintage early DC and, I'll tell you, it's something; it's really nice."

Weist continued, "We have the entire issue of Spider-Man #31 by Steve Ditko — and we have a finished preliminary by Robert Crumb for an unpublished Zap cover. That's very strong, very strong.

"Bruce Hamilton is coming in with the final Carl Barks painting from which the final lithograph in his series will be made; a reproduction will appear in the catalog of Barks' 'Mardi Gras after the Thaw.'"

Weist said the catalog would begin to ship into the direct market as soon as it was printed. "It may be in comics shops in early November; Capital and Diamond have already put in their orders."

lowing year and soon became a mainstay of comics, with the series and its creators winning Inkpot, Kirby, and numerous other industry awards.

Although Baron and Rude never held full copyright to their creation, they did enjoy cooperative relationships with both Capital and First. Dark Horse said it plans to take its relationship with the creators a step further by eventually returning all Nexus rights to Baron and Rude.

"Dark Horse Comics was founded on the belief that creators have the right to total control over the destiny of their characters and concepts and how their creations are presented to the reading public," Richardson said. "I've worked with Rick, Mike, and Steve to arrange that all rights to Nexus will become the sole property of its creators."

Dark Horse will begin with an issue of Nexus followed by the aforementioned mini-series written by Baron, pencilled by Rude, and inked by Gary Martin, trentatively scheduled for release in spring 1992.

NEXT MEN

which will ship in November to retailers along with John's 2112 trade paperback.

"Next Men involves mutates who escape from Project: Next Men only to find themselves in a world completely different from their memories."

Byrne said, "We're going to eat the cost of the silver and embossing ourselves, me and Dark Horse. Ain't we swell?" He laughed. "It's a little gift from us to the readers. Most companies would tack on an extra buck to cover the expense."

Flashback: Five years ago

After an absence of nearly four years, Harvey Comics return to newsstands in July 1986, following a major reorganization of the company. Titles resuming publication include Richie Rich, Hot Stuff, and The Friendly Ghost, Casper.

Lovecraft's Cthulhu comes to comics

Stephen King referred to H.P. Lovecraft as "The 20th century's greatest practitioner of the classic horror tale."

Now, Millennium Publications will bring Lovecraft's most famous creation, the Cthulhu Mythos, to the comics field in a new series, H.P. Lovecraft's Cthulhu.

The full-color monthly series will adapt stories in the mythos — not only those by Lovecraft, but also by horror writers Frank Belknap Long, August Derleth, and Robert Bloch, all contributors to the Cthulhu canon.

At the same time, Millennium will build on the mythos with original material and sequels to the adaptations, creating an original, ongoing storyline drawing on the best of Lovecraft's inventions.

"Horror writers for years have been adding to the Lovecraft mythos, creating an entire universe populated by horrific creatures," said Millennium Publisher Paul Davis. "We're carrying on that tradition."

And — for the collector audience — the first six-issue series will carry trading cards showcasing monsters from the Cthulhu Mythos — the first such cards featured in an ongoing horror comic book, Davis said.

Each issue will contain two full-color cards with descriptions of the monsters on the back, as well as information about when the creature first appeared in the Lovecraft canon.

"A lot of publishers have produced super-hero cards," Davis said. "But, until now, no one has offered trading cards in an ongoing horror comic. This is a real first and should be a hit with collectors and horror fans. And the cards are real knockouts."

The Cthulhu Mythos postulates that an ancient race, far older than mankind, hides in far corners of the universe, awaiting resurrection. Invaders from other worlds and dimensions, they were expelled from Earth or imprisoned like monstrous Cthulhu in the sunken Pacific city of R'lyeh. They are worshipped by secret cults dedicated to restoring their rule over mankind. Much like the Cenobites of Clive Barker's Hellraiser, horrible creatures populate the Lovecraft mythos, most of the monsters so terrifying that their mere appearance drives men mad.

Perhaps the most famous element of the Lovecraft world is the forbidden book The Necronomicon, a tome of "blasphemous knowledge which contains incantations and ceremonies that can not only summon Cthulhu and his minions but — in some cases — defeat them."

"We're taking a different spin with the series," Davis said. "Rather than doing simple adaptations, the series is designed as an ongoing story with a cast of continuing characters."

The characters belong to a group known as the Miskatonic Project, named after Lovecraft's fictional New England school, Miskatonic University. According to Editor Mark Ellis, they are "people who have had dealings with Cthulhu and his cults at one time or another. They're scarred — either physically, psychically, or both. They're scholars, but they're also tough, adventurous people — not victims."

"We're bringing the Lovecraft pantheon to life," added Terry Collins, one of the project's writers. "We'll be using all the trappings Lovecraft made famous: the ancient books of forbidden knowledge, the remote New England villages and foggy seaports — and, of course, the monsters."

Although the format of the series is designed to allow more than one artist-writer team to contribute to the sequels, Lovecraft illustrator Daryl (Crypt of Cthulhu) Hutchinson will handle adaptations of the actual stories. Millennium Creative Director Melissa Martin said, "Daryl has created a unique style for the series which perfectly captures Lovecraft's brooding atmosphere."

The first three issues will present, respectively, an adaptation and sequel to a pivotal story in the mythos, "The Whisperer in Darkness." Subsequent issues will feature adaptations of "The Hounds of Tindalos," "The Thing on the Doorstep," and "Dreams in the Witch House."

Ellis said, "The plotline that ties the adaptations and sequels together revolves around the awakening of Cthulhu and his minions, hungry to bestride the Earth once more. The series will lead up to a final, apocalyptic confrontation, with the fate of the human race in the balance."

The Cthulhu mythos has maintained a strong popularity over the years, Davis said. "A trend is definitely building. Fangoria recently devoted an entire issue to Lovecraft, and several motion pictures and telefilms based on his works are slated for release in the near future. Chaosium's role-playing game Call of Cthulhu is enormously popular. Tekeli-Li, a new journal devoted to the study of Lovecraft and horror, has been well received. So the series should have wide appeal."

The first full-color, 32-page issue of H.P. Lovecraft's Cthulhu is scheduled to ship in early December.

Cthulhu

The Miskatonic Project

'Lovecraft's Cthulhu': Setting and premise

Setting and Time Period: Late 1920s, around '28 or '29. The primary setting is Miskatonic University in Arkham, Mass.

The Miskatonic Project

Lord Justin Sabbath: Survivor of an earlier encounter with Cthulhuoids, in "The Mountains of Madness." Tall, dark-haired, kind of Sean Conneryish in appearance. Early '40s. His eyes were disfigured by his encounter . . . the whites are black and the irises are white, like a negative. He wears dark glasses with shields on the sides. He is extremely light-sensitive but can now see in almost total darkness and into the infra-red spectra. Able to detect Ctulhuoids by their auras. He is a bitter, obsessed man, perhaps a little mad.

Professor Augustus "Granite" Grant: An instructor of psychology at Miskatonic University. Six feet, five inches tall. A black man, former boxer, friend and sparring partner of Jack Johnson. Nickname derives from his face, especially from his formidable jaw, which looks like rock. Everybody calls him "Granite" but Sabbath, who addresses him formally as "Augustus." When he's not fighting, he wears comical-looking pince-nez spectacles which hang from a string on his lapel. Another survivor of a Cthulhu encounter.

Fleu Avignon: Blonde, beautiful historian from France. Expert on the Knights Templar connection to Cthulhu worship. Also a psychic — a celebrity psychic, fortune-teller to the rich and famous. Gypsy background.

Weapons: Heavy-duty stuff of the period: tommy guns, automatic pistols, sawed-off shotguns, grenades, and religious paraphernalia.

Despite backgrounds as academics, the members of the Miskatonic Project are very tough — in Sabbath's case, almost obsessed. No victims at all.

Book Guide

Silent Thunder by Dean Ing and Universe by Robert A. Heinlein. Tor, $3.99 (Tor SF Double #31). Reviewed by Robert Coulson.

Universe is a classic reprint. It's been included in anthologies and collections and once had a book of its own, back when Dell tried a series of novelets in individual paperbacks for a dime apiece. (The good old days.)

It's also the absolute best of a sub-species of science fiction called "generations-ship" stories. As an alternate to faster-than-light travel, numerous writers speculated on the use of huge starships that would be self-contained worlds, to spread mankind to the stars.

Several science-fiction writers saw the same flaw: What if the descendents of the original passengers disliked the purpose of the trip or forgot about it? Even Star Trek did a version, using an asteroid as the ship.

In Heinlein's story, there was a revolt against the officers, reading ability was lost, and the people have forgotten the purpose of the trip — and even the fact that they're on a trip. The ship has become the world. There have also been mutations; "Joe-Jim," the two-headed "mutie," is one of the more striking characters in science fiction.

Silent Thunder is a near-future techno-thriller.

There are certain people with "hypnotic" voices. William Jennings Bryan was one; my father once said that while you were listening to Bryan, you believed everything he said. Hitler was another.

The idea of this story is that Hitler's vocal powers were electronically augmented by a gadget that made him an even more commanding speaker. One of the gadgets has survived, and a politician much like Bryan, but more easily influenced, is now president, and only one person (of course) suspects how it was done.

This is novella-length, a reasonably good thriller, and acceptable as science fiction. There are echoes of Heinlein's Revolt in 2100 here, with a more up-to-date and believable plot.

Book Guide

The Riddler's Riddle Book by David Levin. Tor, $3.50. Reviewed by Robert Coulson.

These are the sort of riddles that young children find hysterically funny and adults attempt to avoid. "Why did the Riddler change his name to Exit? He wanted to see his name in lights!" "What's Batman's favorite sport? Bat-minton."

That sort of joke. In my day, the proper age for this sort of thing was 10 to 12, but I keep hearing that children are more sophisticated these days, so you might try giving the book to someone as young as 8 or 9, if the child's reading skills are adequate.

He or she will then ask them of everyone in the house until you're all sick of them, but at least the book is cheaper than that battery-operated Batmobile you were looking at, and not much more distracting.

This list is continually updated and revised. Each company's titles are arranged alphabetically by sales date. The first date in parentheses is the date it is to be shipped to distributors, the second is the on-sale date: (11/12 11/19) would mean the title is to ship Nov. 12 and go on sale Nov. 19; (Nov/Dec) would mean that it ships in October to go on sale in November. If only one date appears — such as (11/12) or (Nov) — that is the shipping date. Comics shops have issues for sale earlier than the official on-sale date.

About late titles

In the following list, titles at the beginning of each publisher's section which do not have a shipping and/or on-sale date are, as far as we can determine, late — those titles had not appeared as of the date this issue went to the printer, according to all the sources we can check. Publishers which do not publish anything within a reasonable length of time will be dropped from the "Comics in Your Future" listing. Corrections, updates, and reschedulings — and more late issues — will be noted two weeks from now, when this list runs again. Publishers should notify CBG if comics on this list have been published, canceled, or rescheduled.

Internal Correspondence covers news from outside the market that affects events in it, as well as complete coverage of news that's happening in the market served by specialty retailers.

Why is Internal Correspondence® Quoted by the New York Times and Fortune?

Capital City Distribution, Inc. has published Internal Correspondence - "the news magazine for specialty retailing" - continuously since 1982. In those nine years, Internal Correspondence has become the source for market reports, product news, best-seller lists, and commentary on industry trends. We assume the New York Times and Fortune use market information from Internal Correspondence for the same reasons retailers do - because it's accurate, complete, well-presented, and reliable.

Capital is at the nexus of the distribution system for specialty stores, where information from both publishers and retailers flows. This information is compiled and reported in Internal Correspondence each month as a tool for understanding today's complex markets. If you're not reading Internal Correspondence every month, you don't have all the information you need.

Internal Correspondence is provided free of charge each month to Capital's retailer customers, and to subscribers for $200 per year. If you want to get Internal Correspondence, contact Teresa, Tim or Jerry at 608-275-7777.

"In Germany they came first for the Communists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Communist. Then they came for the Jews, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, and I didn't speak up because I was a Protestant. Then they came for me, and by that time no one was left to speak up." — Martin Niemoeller

GRADING GUIDE

Theoretically, given a set of grading rules, determining condition of a comic book should be simple. Unfortunately, flaws vary from item to item, and it can be difficult to pin one label on a particular issue. In no way is a CBG reader or advertiser bound to follow this or any other standard, but each is welcome to use this as a service which can clarify collecting terms.

Mint This is a perfect comic. Its cover has full luster, with its edges sharp and its pages like new. There are no signs of wear or aging. It is not imperfectly printed nor markedly off-center. "Mint" means just what it says.

Fine This comic book's cover is worn but flat and clean with no defacement. There is no cover writing or tape repair. Stress lines around the staples and more rounded corners are permitted. It is a good-looking issue at first glance.

Good This is a complete but very worn comic book. Creases, minor tears, rolled spine, and cover flaking are permissable — but there is no tape or browned pages. Older Golden Age comics often come in this condition.

Fair This comic book may have a soiled, slightly damaged cover, badly rolled spine, cover flaking, corners gone, tears, and the like. It is an issue with multiple problems but it is intact. Tape may be present.

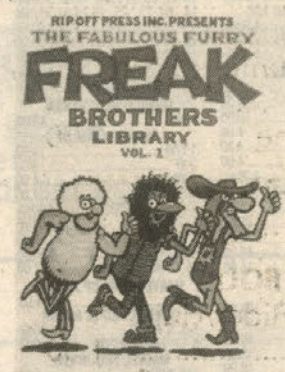
IT'S ALL HERE IN BLACK AND WHITE FROM RIP OFF PRESS!

BLAST OFF! WITH DIK SKYCAP

Meet dashing Dik Skycap and his sidekick Dr. Ian DeFrost, two of the U.S. Postal Service's finest. Here in the 41st century, it's tough to find love. What can a guy do but throw himself into his work? The Mail Carrier's Credo—"Neither wind, nor sleet, nor rain, nor the vacuum of space, nor Mondays (except on Government holidays) will stop the Mail Carrier who's not on strike or feeling up to it"—is the watchword for these intrepid voyagers. Little do they know they're on a suicide mission rigged by the evil C.E.O. of Nutridyne Corp.—of which the U.S. Government is a wholly owned subsidiary!
Philip Groves' charmingly drawn, outrageously comical sci-fi adventure fires away at a hundred laughs per minute with risque' humor and occasional dashes of nudity. Mature Readers will not want to miss this hilarious new series! 2.50.

THE FREAK BROTHERS LIBRARY SERIES RETURNS!

FOUR 96-PAGE, LARGE SIZE TRADE PAPERBACKS PRINTED ON WHITE STOCK WITH BRILLIANT, UV-COATED COLOR COVERS. IDEAL FOR HOLIDAY GIVING!



Freak Brothers Library Vol. 1
This volume features a terrific collection of the earliest Freak strips including "The Freaks Pull a Heist" and other classic gems. $9.95.

Freak Brothers Library Vol. 2
Classic Freak Brothers laughs from the peak period, including "Shootout at the County Slammer" and the ever-popular "Mexican Oddysey." Our first printing (in 1989), intended to last for years, sold out in only ten months! $9.95.

Freak Brothers Library Vol. 3
Featuring the classic story "Grass Roots," as the Freaks come into some money and start their own country commune. Plus lots more great material by the team of Shelton, Sheridan and Mavrides. Coming late October. $9.95.

Freak Brothers Library Vol. 4
The Freak Brothers leave the Sixties behind and move into the Eighties, in strips and stories by Gilbert Shelton, Dave Sheridan and Paul Mavrides. Coming in November. $9.95.

AN OPEN LETTER FROM MARVEL TO OUR DISTRIBUTORS AND RETAILERS

Dear Distributor/Retailer:

As you are all too aware, there have been enormous problems regarding the Marvel X-Men action figure line. Despite our repeated efforts to ensure prompt delivery to our accounts, the manufacturer instead proceeded with shipment to several major retailers. While we redouble our efforts to get Marvel accounts shipped before other outlets, I offer this letter to explain—NOT EXCUSE—the events to date.

The story begins months ago when production started approximately six weeks behind schedule. When goods were finally available, several retailers opted to air freight full container lots to their consolidator. Since Marvel's shipment was also to come by air, Marvel tried to contact the manufacturer and place the order for our accounts. Our repeated phone calls were never returned, and the orders for the retailers were allowed to ship without the Marvel order. Outraged, Marvel arranged an emergency meeting at which we secured a promise that the next production run would be air freighted to Marvel's east coast facility in the U.S. At our request, the manufacturer also reluctantly agreed to pay one-half the air freight for this shipment and give Marvel retailers the option to return goods still unsold by November. We were still disappointed about what had transpired, but we were hopeful that we were on our way to a resolution.

Our hopes were dashed soon after, when a second shipment not only shipped late but to the wrong destination. Instead of shipping to Marvel's east coast facility as agreed, the shipment was split between two ports on the west coast. Again, time was lost unnecessarily while the shipment was traced, went through customs, and was trucked to our warehouse in Massachusetts.

As of August 19th, 750 cases had arrived on the east coast which have now been shipped. We are still awaiting information concerning the balance of our order.

In the face of these unfortunate circumstances, we have made provisions for you to cancel your order if you wish to do so. Please feel free to contact us in this regard.

Allow me to conclude by telling you that we are as disturbed by these events as you are, but we will not allow our frustration to diminish our efforts to expedite this situation as best we can.

Make Mine Marvel

HURRY-OFFER EXPIRES 12-31-91

X-MEN™ #1 COLLECTORS PIN SET!

Call Toll Free 1-800-827-1746!

Produced by Planet Studios and limited to only 2,500. Each set individually signed by Jim Lee!

Choose an available number from 1 to 2,500 and you will receive all five pins with the same number. (Sorry, but number one goes to Jim Lee.) These pins will not be available anywhere else as a matched set.

The number you select will be registered to you, and you will have first option of receiving that number on future pin releases. This includes the Limited Edition X-Force™ #1 Cover Pin scheduled for September release and drawn by Rob Liefeld.

You will also receive a free one year (12-issue) subscription to the Novelty Price Guide. This will enable you to monitor the value of your pins as they are sure to skyrocket! The Spider-man™ #1 Cover Pin is already selling for $20.00 (we are currently buying that pin for $17.00 if you've got one!)

To order this pin set, simply call us to reserve your number. Send payment by mail or use your Visa/Mastercard. (If you send payment without calling first, a number will be chosen for you at random.)

The fifth pin is a compilation of the first four and measures a full 2x5 inches!

Call 1-800-827-1746 to reserve your number, then send payment of $69.75 plus $3.00 for shipping and insurance to: Subscriptions, Pin Division, 1565 Cliff Road, Suite 3-450, St. Paul, MN 55122.

Vietnam vet explores Persian Gulf War

New comic book takes a serious look at Operation Desert Storm

A veteran of the Vietnam War has written and drawn the first in a series of comic books which tells the story of Operation Desert Storm.

Desert Storm Journal, sold mainly through comics specialty stores, is not Rambo "blamming" and "pow-wing" Saddam Hussein's Republican Guards.

The series takes a more realistic approach and its author said he is hoping for a large adult readership.

The goal, says Illinois writer-artist Don Lomax, is "to try to see the war from what I call the grunt's-eye view — the perspective of the soldiers, sailors, and fliers who were plopped into the gunsights of the Iraqi war machine to free a country and a culture that most of them knew little or nothing about."

Lomax, who served in Vietnam in 1966 and 1967 and currently has two sons in the military, said he is being accurate in the depiction of equipment and events, but he is also trying for "emotional authenticity."

"It's not a gung-ho, rah-rah, shoot-'em-up like some past comics about wars," he said.

But the shoot-'em-up element is undeniably present. The first issue depicts the first night's bombing of Baghdad, accompanied by detailed drawings of the fighters, bombers, and Cruise missiles that spearheaded the assault. Two full pages in the second issue are given over to a panoramic illustration of an aerial duel over the Iraqi capital. Lomax used satellite reconnaissance photos as reference.

The first issue also carries President Bush's Jan. 16 speech in which he announced the beginning of the air war.

"Don demands that Desert Storm Journal be as accurate as possible," said Hilary Hughes, editor of the series which is published by Apple Comics. "So we've started a separate library just to keep up with all the ongoing research." That library so far includes books, videotapes, complete runs of nearly a dozen newspapers and magazines since the start of the war, and documents released by the White House and the Pentagon.

Beyond that, Apple Comics is actively seeking firsthand accounts from returning troops of their experiences.

The war is seen through the eyes of a fictional ex-Vietnam war correspondent who is called out of retirement. "At first, we'll follow him stright through the battles in the air, on the ground and with Pentagon censors. In later issues, we'll see things through his interviews with the troops," Lomax said. "I've already got enough material for several years' worth of issues."

Lomax began his career in comics in the mid-1970s. Since 1987, he has been writing and drawing Vietnam Journal, which has been collected in book form and has won praise from comics reviewers and Vietnam veterans alike. Lomax will continue to produce both Desert Storm Journal and Vietnam Journal..

The majority of Desert Storm Journal's first printing has already been sold to comic book stores in the United States and Canada. Collectors get to choose between two different versions of the cover, one featuring an inset drawing of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and one featuring Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf.

OUR AUCTIONS ARE FUN AND BIDDING IS EASY

Read about the hundreds of rare comics and related collectibles in our current catalog at your leisure. Every lot is photographed, and each is graded and described in such complete detail that even major comic companies save our catalogs and use them as reference works. Then, from the comfort of your own home or office, bid whatever you like by mail - or phone us with your bids. After the auction closes, winning bidders are sent invoices which clearly detail their winnings. We ship all material promptly, and everything is very carefully wrapped and protected by our dedicated staff. We have been serving collectors since 1964, and this is our 32nd deluxe, photo-illustrated catalog issued since 1982. Our grading is strict, and we count among our valued customers not only professional comic book writers, artists and editors, but also many of the world's foremost Golden Age Dealers. For the highest standards in the rare comic book field, turn to Wooley's - where collectors and professionals alike go to buy.

This past August cartoonist Roger Armstrong (Scamp, Little Lulu, Bugs Bunnny, Napoleon, Ella Cinders) taught a watercolor painting class in Laguna Beach, Calif. CBG columnist Shel Dorf attended the week-long class and took this photo of Roger and one of the students, Susan Outcault Potts, the granddaughter of Richard Felton Outcault. Outcault practically started the Sunday newspaper comic secion with his Yellow Kid which began on Oct. 19, 1896, in the New York Journal. Susan's father, Richard Jr., was the model for his father's other strip, Buster Brown. Armstrong has taught Susan since she was a teenager. Armstrong has done a Walter Foster series book (#220) How to Draw Cartoons, widely regarded as one of the best books on the subject. He is holding one of his own paintings. Photo by Shel Dorf

Theodor Seuss Geisel — Dr. Seuss — dies at 87

By James Neal

Dr. Seuss is dead.

The author of such quirky rhyming classics as The Cat in the Hat and the holiday TV tradition How the Grinch Stole Christmas and the creator of Gerald McBoing-Boing died in his home in La Jolla, Calif., just outside San Diego.

Officially, the Sept. 24 death went on the record as that of Theodor Seuss Geisel, age 87. He had been ill for several months. But to children all across the world, many of whom learned to love reading through his books, a real friend is gone.

He wrote 47 books and illustrated most of them. More than 100 million copies have been sold in 18 languages. In 1984, Geisel was awarded the Pulitzer Prize for his contribution to children's literature.

Geisel's audiences may have been children, but his messages were subtle comments on issues. The Butter Battle Book in 1984 has been called a parable for the nuclear age — about the Zooks, who eat the butter on top of their bread, and the Yooks, who prefer it upside down — and the confrontation between the nations.

> Did he run? He did not! Horton stayed on the nest.
> He held his head high. And he threw out his chest.
> And he looked at the hunters as much as to say
> "Shoot if you must. But I won't run away.
> I mean what I said and I said what I meant.
> An elephant's faithful, 100 percent!"
> —Horton Hatches an Egg

How the Grinch Stole Christmas, which was turned into an animated classic shown every holiday season on TV, brought the message that Christmas is more than gifts and decorations.

Geisel was born in Springfield, Mass., in 1904. His father was a brewer who became a city parks service official during Prohibition and who had his office in a zoo. It was at this zoo that Geisel spent much time as a youngster and got many of his ideas.

Geisel graduated in 1925 from Dartmouth, where he drew cartoons for the campus humor magazine, Jack-O-Lantern; he went to England to study literature at Oxford, and there he met Helen Palmer, another American literature student. He went to Paris and was an associate briefly of Lost Generation writers Ernest Hemingway, Gertrude Stein, and James Joyce.

In 1927, Geisel returned to the United States and married Helen Palmer, postponing his ambition to write a novel while he sold cartoons and gags to humor magazines including Judge and Life.

While working for an advertising company, he came up with the phrase "Quick Henry, the Flit!" to go with his wild cartoons promoting a bug spray. The four words became a catchphrase all over the United States.

On a ship crossing the Atlantic, Geisel found himself affected by the rhythm of the engines. He began writing words to that rhythm, rhyming words, and came up with his first children's book, . . .And to Think That I Saw It on Mulberry Street, published in 1937. His first adult novel, The Seven Lady Godivas, was published the same year. The children's book was an award-winning success; the adult novel was not.

Geisel joined the Army after Pearl Harbor and worked on indoctrination films for movie director Frank Capra. Two movies on which he worked then, Hitler Lives and Design for Death which he co-wrote with his wife, won Academy Awards for their producers. In civilian life, he wrote the story for the cartoon Gerald McBoing-Boing, which won an Oscar in 1951.

He also devised the 1953 fantasy movie The 5000 Fingers of Dr. T.

How the Grinch Stole Christmas and The Cat in the Hat were both published in 1957, and Grinch also became an animated TV half-hour special, with Boris Karloff narrating.

The Cat in the Hat, written from a vocabulary list of only 348 words, has been credited with revolutionizing children's reading habits. "That is what I am proudest of — that I had something to do with getting rid of Dick and Jane," Geisel said in an interview in 1982.

Geisel's last book, Oh, the Places You'll Go, was published in 1990 and was on the New York Times best-seller list for 78 weeks.

Giesel's first wife died in 1967. His second wife, the former Audrey Stone Dimond, whom he married in 1968, survives. Giesel had no children of his own but had two stepdaughters, Legray Dimond of San Diego County and Lark Dimond of Hawaii.

At Giesel's request, no funeral services were planned.

> And will you succeed?
> Yes! You will indeed.
> (98 and ¾ percent guaranteed.)

I have this dream of walking into my local Hallmark store and finding a whole section of Banned Books Week greeting cards. Cute little animals with black rectangles across their mouths and other naughty bits, gaily romping on cards with clever little maxims for the occasion. Epigrams like:

"For this observance of freedom, I just wanted to say . . ."

(Open card)

". . . Censored censored censored censored today!"

Or maybe:

"Don't be afraid of the censor's reign . . .

"Just remember: They can't gag your brain!"

Or even the terse:

"Better read than led!"

Banned Books Week, which celebrates the freedom to read, was observed nationwide Sept. 28 to Oct. 5 by libraries and bookstores. The observance is in its tenth year.

Your local newspaper ran one article on it. Your local television station ran, maybe, one really short story on it. The comic-book industry ignored it completely. Even this column isn't appearing until after the week has come and gone. Consider this a belated Banned Books Week card.

Among the books challenged or barred in 1990-91 are Webster's Dictionary*, 1986 edition (challenged in New Jersey because its definition of sexual intercourse was objectionable),* My Friend Flicka by Mary O'Hara (removed from fifth and sixth grade reading lists in Florida because it contained the words "bitch" and "damn"), and Where's Waldo? by Martin Handford (challenged at public libraries in Michigan because "on some of the pages, there are dirty things").

Hmm. I wonder if we should be looking just a little bit closer at some of the webbing in Todd McFarlane's Spider-Man*.*

The main defense against book banning is our old friend, the First Amendment. Those of you who didn't stop reading this column to go looking for cheap thrills in your McFarlane collection might recall that I quoted that very amendment last week. I'm about to quote it again. Hey, if you can shell out for five copies of the same damn comic book, you can handle a little constitutional repetition in these pages. It's good and good for you.

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances."

It's a law that protects the preacher and the pornographer alike. It protects their right to express themselves and my right to report on those expressions. It protects both the popular idea and the unpopular idea and it charges our Government with the obligation to provide that protection. Today's unpopular notion may well be tomorrow's most cherished belief. Neither Christianity nor democracy were exactly overnight successes.

Let's segue to the amazingly rational city of Lakewood, Ohio. I went to St. Edward High School in that city from 1965 to 1969. Then, as now, Lakewood was not what one would call your hotbed of liberalism. It's an average, conservative municipality of some 60,000 mostly middle-class people.

Two years ago, a Lakewood police investigation of video rental stores led to the seizure of 17 questionable films. The city decided against filing any criminal charges, because it didn't have a local definition of obscenity. Officials filed civil charges against the stores based on a determination by David R. Harbarger, then the city's law director. He said, at the time, "In our opinion, these tapes are obscene, and that is against the law in Ohio."

The officials also commissioned a survey led by Ohio State University criminologist Joseph E. Scott and Survey Research Inc. to determine what community standards were in Lakewood. The Supreme Court has ruled that these community standards determine what is obscene.

Guess what? Lakewood doesn't care if its fellow citizens are watching Blazing Mattress or Beauty and the Best in the privacy of their own homes. Sixty-seven percent of them agreed "that the portrayal of sexual conduct in X-rated videos, as described, should be acceptable in Lakewood for those adults who may want to obtain and view them." Seventy-eight percent said they should be able to legally obtain sex videos. Eighty-eight percent said they didn't believe the adult videos would "appeal to any unhealthy lust, or shameful interest in sex" they might have. I'd have to admit those are some pretty impressive percentages and I'm not one to accept such surveys readily.

Last month, Harbarger, now mayor of Lakewood, cited this survey in dropping his city's lawsuit against the video stores. Harbarger watched some of the films in his own home. He said they were "no big deal" but still obscene in his eyes. He then added, "What I think is obscene does not make it so under the law." It's probably too much to hope that Harbarger is a Democrat, but, boy, would I like to see that kind of thinking represented in the 1992 presidential campaign.

Lakewood residents can rent adult videos at local stores, as long as those stores keep the films separate from those children can see. With the exception of pornography featuring children or animals, almost any film may be available in the city. Naturally, there's a Lakewood mayoral hopeful who wants to reopen this issue. That is his right, after all, protected by the very same amendment he seeks to weaken. Too bad he can't perceive the incongruity of his shameful ploy.

I learned a lot during my four years of schooling in Lakewood. It's somehow reassuring to know I can still learn from this exceptional community, as witnessed by this week's uncommonly specific tips . . .

To comic-book publishers: Get involved with 1992's observance of Banned Books Week. Support it in your promotional material and your publications. Join in the efforts of non-comics organizations and publishers to increase awareness of the First Amendment.

To comic-book retailers: Join in local observances of Banned Books Week. Set up educational displays of banned comic books in your stores.

To comic-book fans: Petition your local government to commission a Lakewood-style survey of community standards that includes comics intended for adult readers. Request your local librarians include comics in their Banned Books Week displays.

To Mike Carlin, editor of DC's Superman comics: Turn your team of writers and artists loose on a story "arc" that addresses a logical concern of newspaper reporter Clark Kent.

To Danny Fingeroth, editor of Marvel's Spider-Man comics: Good ol' Peter Parker works for a newspaper, too. See above.

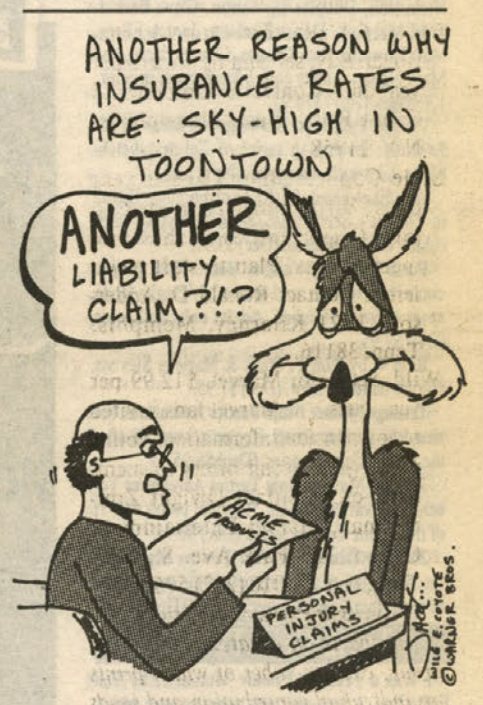
To Don and Maggie Thompson, editors of you-know-what: I think late summer would be right for a special "Banned Books Week" issue of Comics Buyer's Guide. Ask for contributions from comics fans and professionals alike.

To all of us: Stay vigilant. This is a battle that can never be won completely. There's always going to be those eager to exercise their rights to attempts to deprive us of our rights. Do not let them succeed by default.

By the way, Kelly Rose Isabella was born on Monday, Sept. 16, at 11:45 p.m., following an amusing labor of slightly more than three hours. Anyone want to take a wild stab at what next week's column is going to be about?

See you then.

(Tony Isabella will appear at the L&K Sports Cards & Comic Book Show Sunday, Oct. 13, at the Tri-City Senior Center in Middleburg Heights, Ohio, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Write Tony at: Tony's Tips, c/o P.O. Box 1502, Medina, Ohio 44258. If you don't, he may have to write you.)



Deja vu

Larry Boyd of New England Comics Press came across what he refers to as the ancestor to the Charlton comic-book cover used as an illustration to the article on trading comics in CBG #929. He speculates that it is part of what Charlton bought from Fox Comics around 1953. This is not a case of swiping (or, ahem, inspiration) but simply a case of recycling art from Fox's My Desire #9 to Charlton's True Life Secrets #23.

Berni Wrightson: A Look Back

By Chuck Miller

Berni Wrightson is arguably the world's greatest living horror illustrator. His work in comics and book illustration spans two decades of ghouls, monsters, demons, and dinosaurs. Above all are his unflinching depictions of the grim horror within men's souls, rendered in the unique Wrightson style.

His early comics work for DC included House of Mystery and House of Secrets before he brought to life the sublime pathos of Swamp Thing. His series of illustrations for Edgar Allan Poe's work for Christopher Enterprises are as startling and terrifying as the original Poe tales they illustrate. Wrightson is renowned for his book illustrations of Stephen King's works Cycle of the Werewolf and The Stand: The Complete and Uncut Edition.

But, without a doubt, Wrightson's greatest achievement to date remains his rendition of classic line work for Mary Shelley's Frankenstein, or, the Modern Prometheus. Wrightson's marvelous art breathes new life into the overly familiar Gothic novel of modern medicine experiencing the voilence of birth.

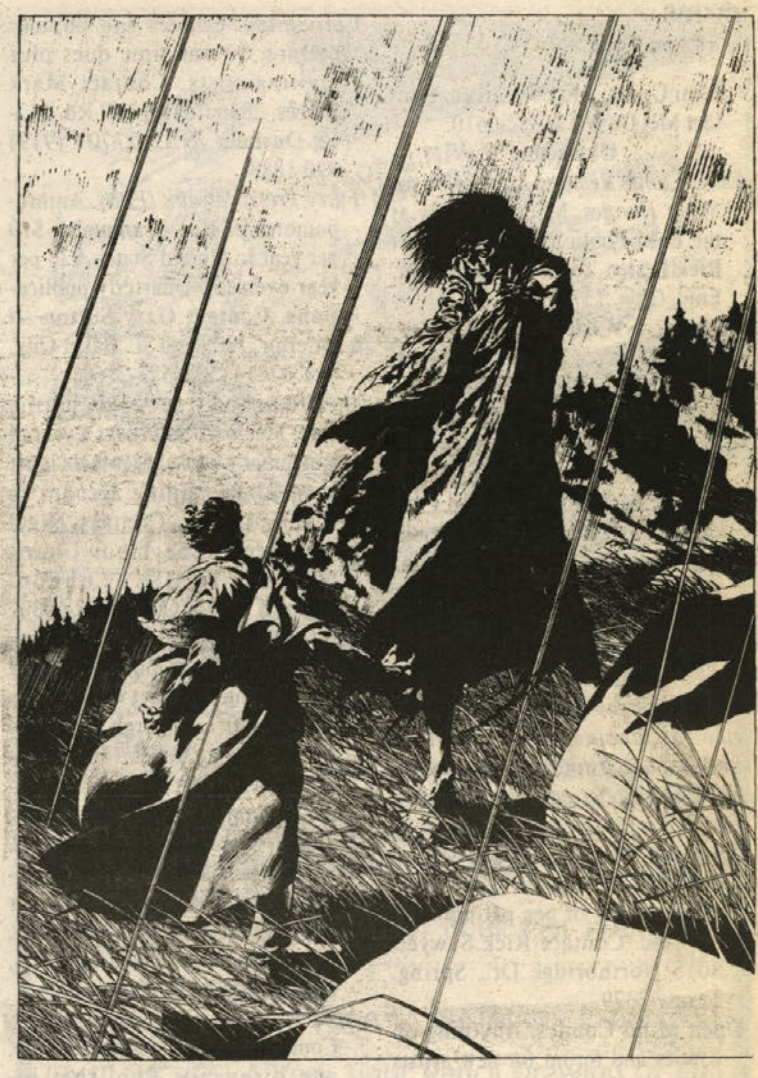
In his introduction to Berni Wrightson: A Look Back, Harlan Ellison wrote, "For Berni Wrightson has paid his dues, worked his apprenticeship, slugged away in the bean fields; and now he has committed himself to that serious art that elevates us all. He has expended valuable time mastering his craft, he has studied the masters, and now we have ten years' worth of retrospective to enjoy . . . There is greatness here. Its name is Wrightson."

As an illustrator of horror, Wrightson is among the greatest artists of all time. Harry Clarke's illustrations for Poe's Tales of Mystery and Imagination and Aubrey Beardsley's art for Oscar Wilde's Salome are shockingly intricate. Gustave Dore and Edmund Dulac provide dark insight into Poe's nightmare visions. Virgil Finlay, Hannes Bok, and Lee Brown Coye's work for Weird Tales and other pulps added new dimensions to horror illustrations.

In the 1950s the horror comic book reached its pinnacle with EC Comics. Tales from the Crypt, The Vault of Horror, and Haunt of Fear with work by Graham "Ghastly" Ingels, Al Feldstein, Jack Davis, Johnny Craig, and Bernie Krigstein plumbed darker depths of comic art.

The Comics Code was instituted in 1954, and by the '60s horror illustration had been forced out of the comics and into the black-and-white magazines of Warren and other publishers. Creepy, Eerie, and Vampirella provided new outlets for old and new talent including Frank Frazetta, Wally Wood, Joe Orlando, Gray Morrow, Jeff Jones, and Berni Wrightson.

All these predecessors and contemporaries influenced Wrightson's work. Some of his earliest professional appearances were in Web of Horror, including the color covers. From there his work began to appear in book illustrations for Mirage Press, and he gained entry into the comics field.



In comics his work spans everything from horror titles and Swamp Thing to The Shadow and Howard the Duck. He remains active with his recent contribution to the Dark Knight mythos, Batman: The Cult.

His work in book illustration includes his masterful adaptation of Frankenstein, his powerful paintings and drawings for Stephen King's The Cycle of the Werewolf (which were originally commissioned and published by Land of Enchantment in hardcovers), and, most recently, his dark interpretation of the post-apocalyptic world of The Stand by King.

Stephen King wrote, "Berni Wrightson is one of the most talented artists to come out of the comic book field in the last 25 years or so. Wrightson is an artist of great talent and great heart."

While horror illustration may be Wrightson's forte, the full spectrum of his work encompasses everything from his versions of the worlds of Edgar Rice Burroughs and Robert E. Howard to his majestic depictions of the Age of Dinosaurs to the wry, amusing collaborations with Vaughn Bode. It was his association with the New York-based group of artists in the mid-1970s known as "The Studio" (Jeff Jones, Michael Kaluta, Barry Windsor-Smith, and Wrightson) which led to the publication of the book The Studio and was the genesis of Wrightson's taking time to devote to his masterwork Frankenstein. .

Berni Wrightson: A Look Back is the largest single-volume collection devoted to the work of one artist ever produced in the comics-horror field. This massive, oversized art book contains 360 pages of Wrightson's stunning color paintings and intricately detailed line work.

It was originally published in 1979 by Land of Enchantment in a small edition of just over 2000 copies in hardcover. The book was years ahead of its time. Nothing remotely like this had ever been done on the work of a single artist. Huge and impressive, with a price tag (of $75) to match, the book was a victim of limited distribution and the economic realities of book publishing. It was simply too big to profitably succeed in such a small, underdeveloped market.

Today, copies are much in demand on the out-of-print market, and they are snapped up at much higher prices when one become available. An entire new generation of Wrightson fans is anxiously seeking this monumental volume. The comics specialty field has developed a sophisticated network of distributors and shops to enable this book to reach its full potential.

Since 1976, Underwood-Miller Publishers has published more than 100 books in the science fiction, fantasy and horror field. It has issued fine collector's editions of work by Jack Vance, Phillip K. Dick, Harlan Ellison, Roger Zelazny, Peter Straub, Robert Bloch, Robert Silverberg, Anne McCaffrey, and many other major authors. Tim Underwood and I are the editors of Bare Bones, Fear Itself, Kingdom of Fear, and other books on the work of Stephen King.

Underwood-Miller has obtained the publishing rights and the original printing plates and color separations for Berni Wrightson: A Look Back and will issue the complete volume, in its original form, in June. The 360-page book is lavishly illustrated with more than 100 pages in full color and 300 black-and-white illustrations, with commentary by Christopher Zavisa and an introduction by Harlan Ellison.

The book will be published in three editions. The first is a large-size softcover, printed on deluxe coated art paper. It will be available to everyone at a $34.95 retail price — a true value at a cost of less than 10¢ per page. Another 700 numbered copies will be bound in full cloth for those who wish a permanent hardcover version at $125, not a high price considering the original 1979 price. For the supreme art and Wrightson fan, 300 copies of Berni Wrightson: A Look Back will feature a deluxe binding and slipcase, with an additional previously unpublished illustration, numbered and signed by Berni Wrightson, Christoper Zavisa, and Harlan Ellison.

This is a book for every fan of Berni Wrightson or horror illustration and for the serious lover of comic art. For full details on Berni Wrightson: A Look Back and a copy of the free 32-page illustrated catalog, write to Underwood-Miller Inc., 708 Westover Dr., Lancaster, Pa. 17601.

Will Murray signs Doc Savage contract

New Bantam series to continue to 1994

"I've signed with Bantam Books for four more Doc Savage novels," Will Murray told CBG. "This is in addition to Python Isle, White Eyes, and The Frightened Fish, which I've alredy turned in. As before, these new books will be based on unpublished Lester Dent material I've purchased from Mrs. Lester Dent and will carry the byline Kenneth Robeson.

"Since my first Doc, Python Isle, hasn't yet hit the bookstores, and Phil Farmer's Doc, Escape from Loki, has been out just two months, I guess this means that Bantam Books has confidence in the concept of new Doc stories."

Python Isle is an October Bantam release.

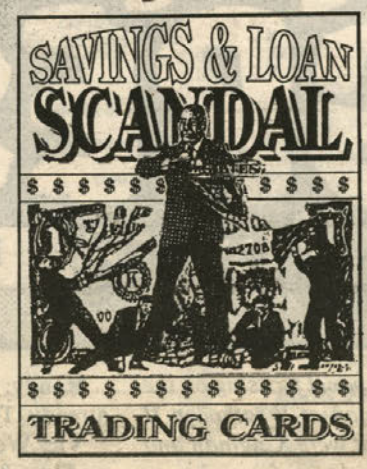
"The four planned titles are The Jade Ogre, Flight into Fear, The Whistling Wraith, and The Forgotten Realm." Murray said. "Flight will be more Lester Dent than Will Murray, actually. It was originally a Cold War thriller written for Fawcett Gold Medal in 1952. Dent was asked to revise it and declined. It lends itself beautifully to being turned into a Doc. In it, Doc Savage, marked for death by the Kremlin for his counter-Soviet activities in The Red Spider, must penetrate Siberia to set up a primitive early-warning system dubbed Moonwinx, while evading his assassin, a woman known as The Red Widow. Since Doc is ordinarily afraid of women, the Soviets may have picked the perfect person to liquidate the Man of Bronze.

"The other three novels will be set in the 1930s," Murray added, "with the usual offbeat Dent villains, tongue-in-cheek humor, and exotic locales. My Bantam editor tells me they plan to release three new Docs a year. By the time I complete this second contract, they'll have enough Docs to last until 1994. I hope to take some time off then — if only to recharge my batteries for what seems to be an inevitable third contract. And yes, there's plenty more Dent material to build new Docs with."

Savings & loan scandal cards receive major media blitz

"Just about every major media outlet has run an article on our latest set of trading cards, focusing on the savings and loan scandal," said Eclipse Distribution Manager Ted Adams.

"Among the news outlets which ran articles are CNN, Time magazine, Wall Street Journal, AP, Los Angeles Times, New York Daily News, Miami Herald, and Reuters News Service. Because AP picked up the article we received hundreds of calls from people who've seen the cards featured in their local newspaper. Everyone who's called wants to know how they can get a set.



"Now is the time for comic-book retailers to get out their Eclipse trading card displays and put them in the window. Everyone in this industry talks about bringing in new customers; here is the chance to really do something about it."

Eclipse Sales Manager Beau Smith said that there is still time to increase orders. "Retailers are already calling in," he said. "Retailers and distributors who under-ordered have time before we go to press to make an advance reorder, insuring they get the additional copies they need."

The Savings and Loan Scandal Trading Cards is scheduled to ship in late October and retails for $8.95.

Image Publishing

Company offers books on 'Alien Nation,' 'Planet of the Apes,' 'Beauty and the Beast'

Image Publishing of New York produces nonfiction volumes devoted to science-fiction and fantasy films and television series. The company's first three titles are Above & Below: A Guide to Beauty and the Beast, Planet of the Apes Revisited, and The Alien Nation Companion. All are now available.

"It's our hope that these titles will fill a void that exists in the market place," said Image Co-Publisher Paul Nicosia, "and provide readers with high-quality books which will give them value for their dollar."

Co-Publisher Edward Gross said, "We also hope to produce volumes on subjects which have not been previously covered in print. For instance, we are the first publisher to present titles on Planet of the Apes and Alien Nation and, while there has been one other non-fiction book on Beauty and the Beast, Above & Below is a different approach, looking at all aspects of the phenomenon that show has inspired."

Nicosia has a background in graphic arts. He served as art director for United Artists Communications Inc., where he was involved in developing many of the company's logos and trademarks. He also worked for Taurus Entertainment distribution company and for the production company Corsair Pictures.

Gross has written articles on the entertainment industry for Starlog, New York/Long Island Nightlife, Total, Fangoria, Comics Scene, Cinefantastique, All Star Action Heroes, and Premiere. He also has written nonfiction books, including Trek: The Lost Years; Secret File: The Making of Wiseguy; The 25th Anniversary Odd Couple Companion; Paul McCartney: 20 Years on His Own; and Rocky and the Films of Sylvester Stallone. He also edited and wrote a portion of Above & Below: A Guide to Beauty and the Beast and will co-write Planet of the Apes Revisited with Joe Russo and Lawrence Landsman and wrote The Alien Nation Companion.

'Mad' art on exhibit

The first major exhibition of original art from Mad magazine will be featured at the Ohio State University Cartoon, Graphic, and Photographic Arts Research Library from Oct. 6 to Nov. 27.

"Humor in a Jugular Vein: The Art, Artists, and Artifacts of Mad Magazine from the Mark J. Cohen Collection" was previously displayed at the San Francisco Cartoon Art Museum where it broke attendance records. The exhibit will travel to the Sonoma County Museum in Santa Rosa, Calif., following its closing in Columbus.

Original paintings, drawings, and sketches by many of Mad's best-known artists — including Wallace Wood, Frank Kelly Freas, David Berg, Mort Drucker, and Joe Orlando — are included in the exhibition. Also on display are self-caricatures by Mad artists and a selection of books, toys, and other products relating to Mad magazine. A catalog of the exhibition is available for purchase.

The formal opening of "Humor in a Jugular Vein" will be from 2 to 5 p.m. on Oct. 6. Cohen will speak on "The *Mad*ness of Collecting" at 4 p.m. The exhibition is free and open to the public. It is made possible in part by a grant from the Ohio State University Friends of the Libraries.

The Cartoon, Graphic, and Photographic Arts Research Library is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. For additional information call (614) 292-0538.

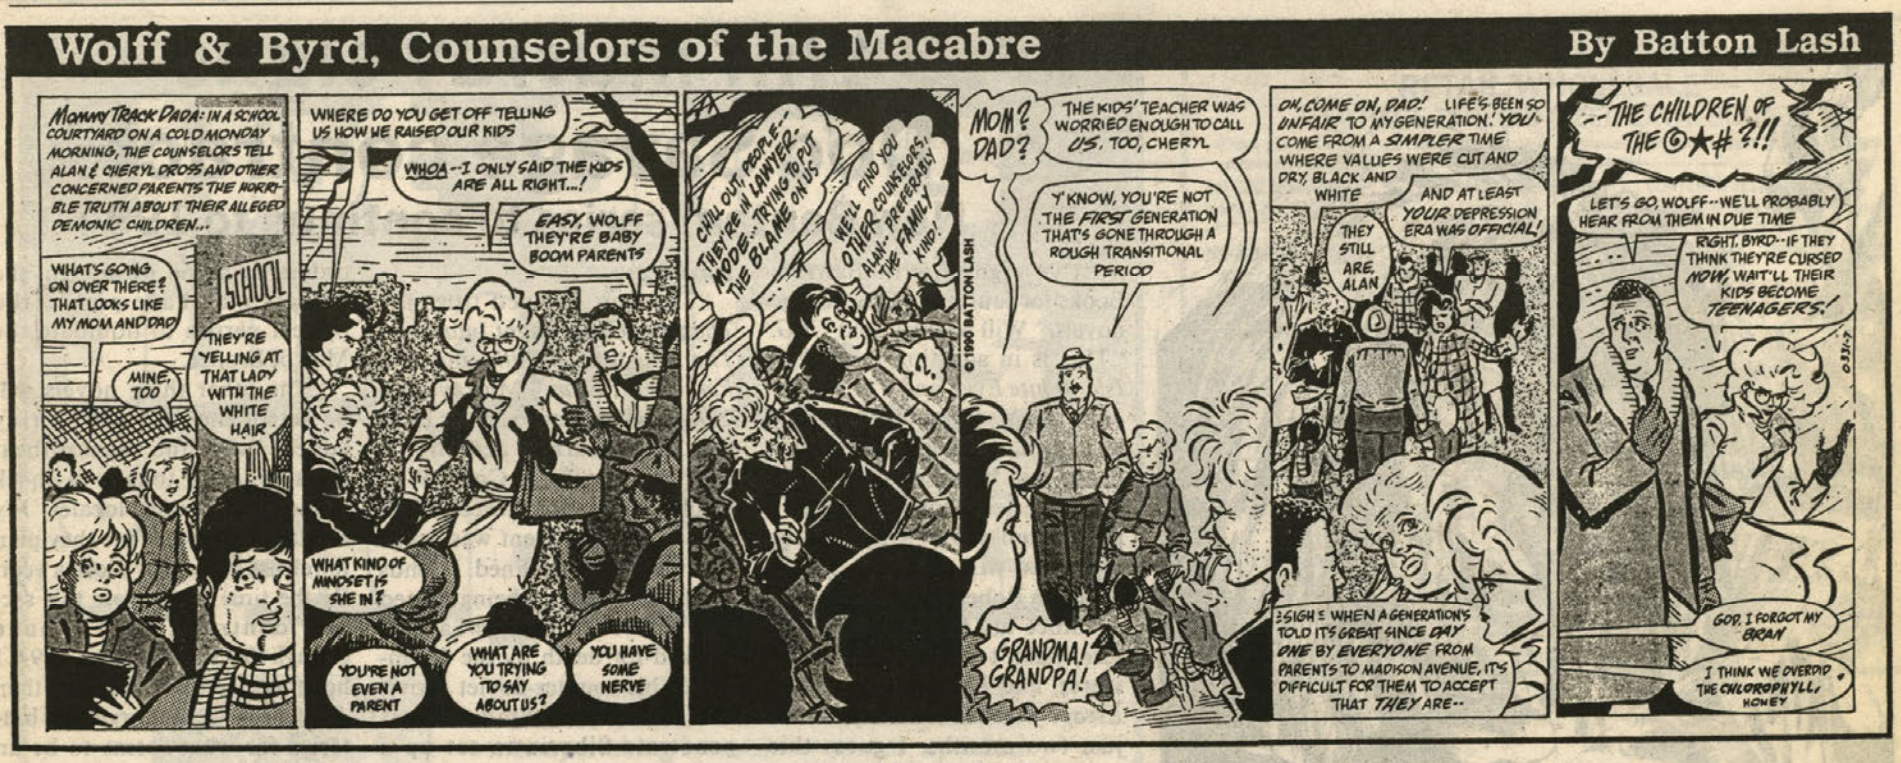
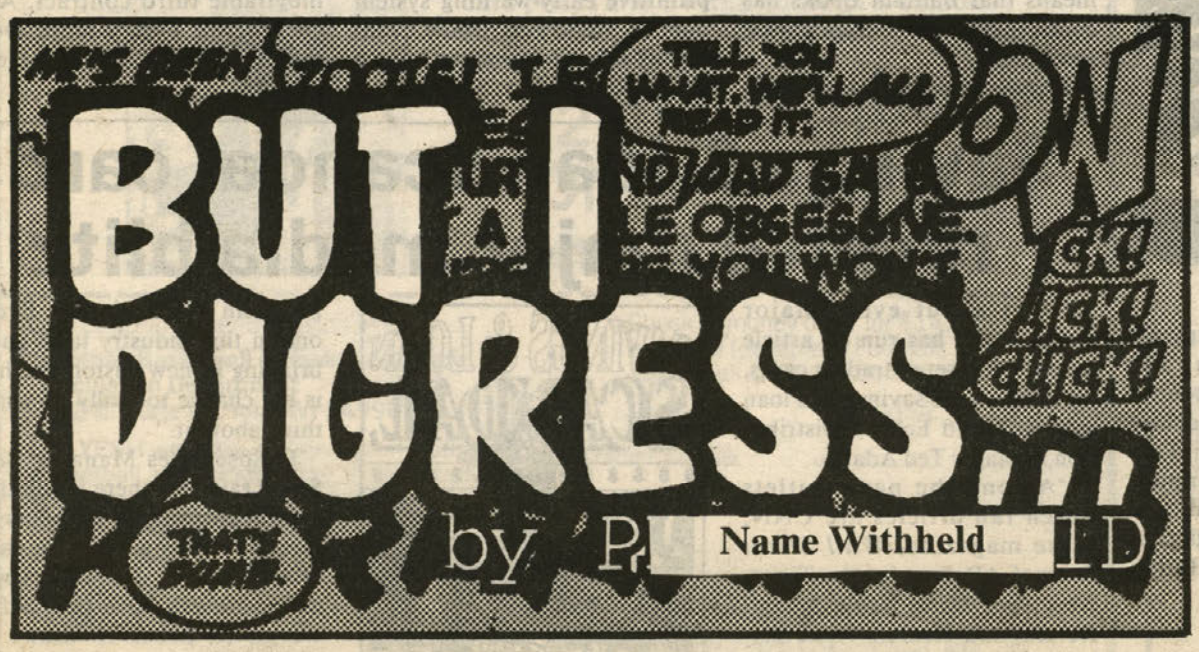
DC Comics cancels Super Friends, a comic book inspired by the Saturday-morning animated TV series. The final issue is #47, August 1981.

—Greg W. Myers





The following is a transcript of a panel focusing on the work of writer-artist Randy Kingman at Wrathocon II in Passaic, N.J., Sept. 21-22. Present were Kingman and Interviewer Vic Chalker.

Vic: Randy, it's good to see you. I'd like to welcome you here on behalf of the Wrathocon audience.

Randy: Thank you, thank you.

Vic: Randy, of course, most people are familiar with your career. You started as artist on Brickman, working with noted writer Buck Grissom—

Randy: Actually, I dislike the term "working with," Vic. The relationship between writer and artist, in which the artist has to curb his own superb artistic impulses to suit the visually uninspired nattering of the "writer," well . . . "working with" makes it sound like it's something I readily agreed to, rather than a situation that I tolerated.

Vic: Well, how would you describe it?

Randy: I would say I was "creatively indentured."

Vic: That sounds brutal.

Randy: Oh, it is, it is.

Vic: You must have felt it liberating when the writer was fired or quit — reports still differ — and you took over the series yourself.

Randy: Well, it was a while in coming, but it was inevitable. I don't mean to badmouth Buck, but, for example: He'd write pages of people just standing there and talking, y'know? Just talking.

Now, that's not what the fans want to see. It's certainly not what I want to draw. So I'd try to give it visual kick by turning those boring, chatty scenes into interesting pin-up pages. Or I'd stick in a fight scene. And Buck would crab about the pacing being screwed up, saying it's not the story he wrote. And he'd complain to the editor, and the editor, he knows what side his bread is buttered on, y'know?

Vic: And now I understand you're starting up a brand new title with orders already more than 12 million for the six different editions. Tell us about it.

Randy: You mean The X-Cels. Yes, that would be my series about a group of mutant cartoon characters who once were simple drawings on celluloid but came to self-awareness and broke free of their restraints and now fight those who threaten freedom of the imagination.

Vic: It sounds a bit autobiographical.

Randy: You're quick, Vic.

Vic: You're writing and pencilling it?

Randy: Writing, pencilling, inking, coloring, and lettering. Let's face it: The artist is what makes the book sing. Everyone else is just hired hands.

That's "artist," as opposed to "inker," by the way. I've heard inkers refer to themselves as artists. They trace lines and they want to be called artists. Five-year-olds can trace lines.

Vic: Your chores on this title sound ambitious.

Randy: Hey, the art is the tough part. I do that already. The rest of the stuff is a cakewalk.

Vic: We have a question from a young lady in the audience?

Young Lady: Mr. Kingman, I just wanted to say that you're a strikingly handsome individual.

Randy: Why, thank you. You'll notice that most artists are lean and good-looking. This is as opposed to most "writers," who are shorter and usually overweight. I imagine this physical jealousy is part of what prompts so many writers to be envious of artists.

The fact is that, in every way, artists are better than writers. Writers can't stand that. They're old news. Fading history.

Vic: How would you account for this physical difference?

Randy: Gravity. Writers sit there in front of their typewriters and sag while writing their recycled plots. Artists are taut and lean, stretched out over their drawing boards. Physical demands of the job. That's what does it.

Vic: Could you tell us who some of your artistic influences are?

Randy: Oh, lots of people have influenced me at various times. Russ Manning. Frank Frazetta. Steranko. Eisner. Burne Hogarth. Plus constant sketching from real life. Friends posing for me. That sort of thing.

Vic: And who are your writing influences?

Randy: I'm sorry, what?

Vic: What writers have influenced your work?

Randy: Well, writing is nothing special. Anyone can write. Why should some writer influence me? It's art that's important.

Vic: But . . .

Randy: After all, you know what one picture is worth a thousand of, don't you?

Vic: But you should have some knowledge and understanding of what other writers have done. I mean . . . what do you think of Hemingway's writing?

Randy: Which one wrote? Mariel or Margaux?

Vic: Let me put it another way: When you write a story—

Randy: I don't "write" a story. The story's just there. I start drawing it.

Vic: OK, how about, when you tell a story, what themes do you explore?

Randy: You mean like music? TV themes?

Vic: Themes! Topics! Subject matter! What comments on the human condition are you trying to make? You know, the things that writers should be doing!

Randy: But are writers doing that? Hell, no. It's all recycled garbage: yesterday's stories in modern dress. Don't tell me that comics writers are exploring — what'd you call it? — themes. They can't even hum themes, much less explore them.

They're old, tired, and used up. But artists have new, fresh ideas. Look at this advance copy of X-Cels, each page brimming with vitality — each page new and different.

Vic: It's fight scenes.

Randy: Yeah?

Vic: It's 20 pages of fight scenes. And two pages of exposition, being told by women with their hips outthrust.

Randy: Isn't it great?

Vic: But comics writers are accused of rehashing. You said so yourself. What in the world is new and novel about fight scenes?

Randy: Because they're being drawn by people who have a grasp of how to tell things interestingly in a visual manner. Writers don't.

Vic: They all look like pin-up pages.

Randy: Right. Writers don't care about important stuff like that because they don't get art pages back. And they gripe about it and ignore the needs of the artists. It's deliberate.

Vic: I'm not following. What do pin-up pages have to do with getting art pages back?

Randy: It has everything to do with it. If I drew what those so-called "writers" wanted, with pages that had six, seven, even eight panels of people talking — or pages of fight scenes with smaller panels instead of big ones — those pages go for less than half of what pages with big images go for.

Vic: "Go for"?

Randy: On the art market.

Vic: Wait a minute. You're saying that when you create stories, one of your major concerns has to do with how much you can sell the pages of artwork for?

Randy: Of course. Pages that have two or three images on them — preferably two or three small panels, combined with an extremely large image (usually a dynamic pose or a fight pose) — those go for a couple hundred bucks easy. Those look great up on walls. Those are genuine pin-up quality. But pages with small images of this character interaction garbage: Those go for peanuts. Those don't look good up on walls. That's one of the reasons Buck quit off Brickman. I'd take his boring, low-value character scenes and turn them into vibrant, valuable collectibles. He hated that. Jealousy.

Vic: But . . . but that's crazy!

Randy: No, it's not. It's economics. It's dollars and cents. Publishers understand about economics. Artists understand about economics. Writers don't.

That's why publishers are selling millions of copies of titles, artists are pushing out writers and making big bucks on the art market, and writers are finding themselves out in the street and wailing about how they're being ignored and shafted. They just brought it on themselves with their unimaginative rehashing. They don't have what it takes to be a writer/artist.

Actually, we're a new breed, and I prefer a different term to refer to us, namely "wartist." They're just not wartist material.

If they hate it so much, why don't they pick up pencils and learn to draw? They're just a bunch of lazy crybabies.

Vic: Can I quote you on that?

Randy: Sure, but don't use my name.

Peter David (whoops, sorry, that should be "Name Withheld"), Writer of Stuff, had been thinking of doing this column for over a month, but had been concerned it might come across as an unprovoked attack. He is most grateful for the provocation.

* Most titles can have all published issues recorded on a single T.A.A.G. sheet!

* Sections to record Annuals, Specials, multiple copies, related issues and title history.

* Three-hole punched for easy insertability into portfolio or notebook.

* Printed on high-quality paper stock for durability.

* Designed for the title completest and character appearance collector alike.

Reflex Point

Reflex Point is a fledgling mail order comic book business. We are just a small company dedicated to serving the comic book patron as best we can. We hope to be able to do more than other mail order companies as well as exceed comic book shoppes in services. We pride ourselves on personal service and an intent to please our customers.

Reflex Point offers a variety of services...
Back Issues - We try to be on top of the coming trends in the market so that we will have an ample supply of the 'hot' items. We also try to flesh out our inventory with those hard to find, obscure titles that people want.
Want Lists - You looked through our back issue list and couldn't find that mint copy of Micronauts #36 that you need to finish your collection? Have no fear then, send us a list of what you are looking for and we will try and find it all for you at no extra charge. Finding things is just business as usual.
New Comics - We offer pre-ordering through Previews magazine with a 30% discount. We send you a free monthly copy of the magazine and all you have to do is send us your order (and your payment, of course).
Role Playing Games - Looking for RPGs but you're sick of paying full price for them? Then check our used RPG section. All of our games are guaranteed to be in at least very good condition. Slightly beat up, but totally usable.

Ordering Instructions:
To order from this ad, all you have to do is make a list of what you want (including quantity of each item wanted). Send your payment (in either check or money order) to the address listed at the bottom of this advertisement. Please make all checks and money orders payable to Jason Galterio.

Remember... All shipments are mailed via U.P.S. free of charge. All comics are mailed bagged, boarded, and securely packed to prevent shipping damages.

For just this month's catalog, send $2.00. For a catalog plus this month's Previews, send $5.00. The Previews catalog will be sent at the beginning of the next coming month via U.P.S. 2nd Day Air. It will arrive at your doorstep with plenty of time to order. Both of these charges are refundable in full with your first order.

With no further ado, here are this month's specials...

I'm selling my comic book collection. It's gotten too big. All the above comics are bagged and in near mint to mint condition, unless otherwise stated. All prices are per issue or (set). Postage is $3.00 + 5¢ per book. (More for foreign orders). Check or money orders only. Please include phone #. Send to: Jeff Hamblen, 649 University Ave., Salinas, CA 93901 . . . Thanks!

It's Come to Our Attention that there are some people who couldn't care less about the investment potential of the comics they buy. For them, there are libraries. And there are others who never read even one of the multiple copies of the books they buy. For these people, there's Wall Street. But chances are, if you're reading this, then you care a little about both investment potential and quality content. For you, there's us.

			FRENCH BATMAN???--Yes, I have a limited edition of the French Batman DARK KNIGHT. This is a 2 volume set, and is unread, because I don't know French. Moebius does the intro, so make me an offer over $375. OK?

Orders over $100 receive a 10% discount. Unless you are purchasing the entire set.

RULES: I hate rules, but here are a few...The prices listed are per comic, except the Ronin, Excalibur, Flash sets. This symbol (x7) indicates how many issues are available. All of these comics are in nrmnt/mnt condition. they are from my private collection, and are bagged/boarded. A check or money order is a good way to pay, and add $3 for postage by UPS, plus 2¢ per comic, OK? TAKE THEM ALL!!!!----the prices here total $2805, not including the French Dark Knight...grab them all for $2300, including French Dark Knight!!!

Peace.

CLASSIFIEDS - a good place to advertise

'Aliens vs. Predator' book is scheduled for December

It was the best-selling comic book from a publisher other than Marvel or DC since the direct market began; the first issue sold 400,000 copies. Now Aliens vs. Predator is collected and recolored for a trade-paperback edition. The 176-page book is set to ship in December.

The space adventure was written by Randy Stradley, with illustrations by pencillers Phill Norwood and Chris Warner and inkers Karl Story and Robert Campanella. It will have a new wrap-around cover painting by Norwood.

"Aliens vs. Predator has been completely recolored," said Stradley. "We weren't entirely happy with the original separations that were done, especially in issue #1. We're having the entire story recolored using the latest computer technology and Norwood's color guides." Issue #0, which collected the short introductory stories from Dark Horse Presents #34-36, has never been seen in color. The eight-page epilogue which ran in the Dark Horse Presents Fifth Anniversary Special will also be presented in color for the first time. In all, there will be more than 40 pages of material that have never been seen in color.

Norwood, in addition to the cover, will do five pages of new art. There will also be an afterword featuring some of his initial sketches and designs.

Editor Jerry Prosser predicted sensational sales. "The first issue of the Aliens vs. Predator series sold more than 400,000 copies," he said. "Not only was it Dark Horse's biggest-selling title, but it was also the best-selling comic book from a publisher other than Marvel or DC since the beginning of the direct market.

"Randy Stradley did an outstanding job of scripting Aliens vs. Predator, and readers will be excited to learn that Randy and artist Chris Warner are working on a sequel to this storyline that will begin serialization in the premiere issue of Dark Horse's newly formatted news publication, The Insider, which will be available in December."

The 176-page trade paperback Aliens vs. Predator is scheduled to ship Dec. 17 and is priced at $19.95 ($23.95 in Canada).

Mole Men invade New York

By Vinnie Bartilucci

In association with its acquisition of the original Adventures of Superman TV show starring George Reeves, Nick at Nite sponsored a showing of the first Superman movie Superman and the Mole Men in New York Sept. 19.

Not seen in its uncut form in more than 30 years, Superman and the Mole Men featured Reeves as Superman and Phyllis Coates as Lois Lane. Coates and Jack Larson (Jimmy Olsen) were in attendance, as were many of the staff of DC's Superman titles, including editor Mike Carlin, inker Dennis Janke, and Jerry Ordway, who is also working on Captain Marvel revival. ("Tell them I'm making Captain Marvel Junior black," Ordway quipped. "I wanna see what everybody does.")

Guests were treated to "Krypton Kocktails" a greenish beverage of no fixed origin, and red-and-yellow cheese hors d'ouevres, laid out in the shape of the Superman logo. A large assortment of memorabilia was on display from the Superman Museum in California including two of George Reeves' original costumes, one from the color seasons and one from the black-and-white (the costume from the black-and-white days was brown and gray, in order to get the proper shades of gray on film.)

Book Guide

For Better or For Worse: Happiness Is a Warm Puddle by Lynn Johnston. Tor, $3.50. Reviewed by Robert Coulson.

Tor has been bringing out a fairly large number of paperbacks put togther from comic strips. Most of these I ignore, but For Better or For Worse is the funniest strip in existence right now. Of course, you may have to be a parent to appreciate it.

The strips here are earlier ones, from a period well before our newspaper carried Johnston. The children are much younger, and the title comes from the acquisition of the dog Farley as a puppy. The drawing style is considerably different, as well; I'm not fond of it, but the humor is as good as I expect.

The Canadian background is a bit startling now and then, but in general, parenthood is exactly the same. And exceedingly funny, both to other parents and to anyone remembering his or her own childhood.

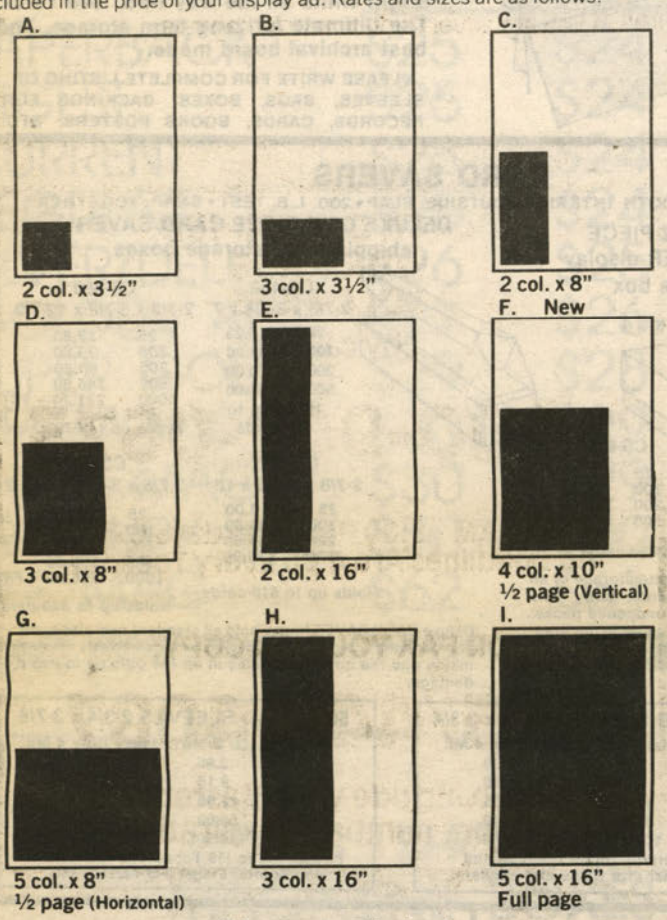
HOW TO ADVERTISE...

Decide what type of ad you need. CBG has several to choose from:

DISPLAY ADVERTISING:

These ads appear throughout COMIC BUYER'S GUIDE, and are available in the eight sizes listed below. Typesetting, photos, artwork, borders and logos are all included in the price of your display ad. Rates and sizes are as follows:



(Price per consecutive issue)

AD SIZE	1 ISSUE	6 ISSUES	13 ISSUES	26 ISSUES	52 ISSUES
A. 2 col. x 3½" (3 13/16" x 3½")	$51.85	$50.55	$47.96	$45.37	$42.78

COMICS TRADER:

This is an area reserved for the "little guy" who wants no-frills advertising with a price to match. $29.00 buys one of the 12 equal spaces on a Comics Trader page. These spaces can be bought in any multiple of the $29.00 unit. We'll reduce the ad and handle all the production - just design your ad on an 8 x 10" space and sent it with payment. Remember to keep your design simple so your ad will be readable when reduced.

COLLECTOR'S SHOWCASE:

This cost-efficient format in COMIC BUYER'S GUIDE offers you typeset space at a discount. Collector's Showcase units are approximately business card size. You may buy as many units as you want for an ad at a cost of $19.00 per box. All typesetting, photos, art, borders and logos are done by Krause Publications and are included in the price.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY:

One column ads, 1-3 inches in length, must appear in the classified section. They may be placed under the various classified headings. This gives you the advantage of targeting the collectors you want to reach while standing out among the smaller word ads in classified. Rates and sizes are as follows:

AD SIZE	1 ISSUE	6 ISSUES	13 ISSUES	26 ISSUES	52 ISSUES
A. 1 col. x 1" (1 13/16" x 1")	$14.81	$14.44	$13.70	$12.96	$12.22
B. 1 col x 2" (1 13/16" x 2")	20.98	20.46	19.41	18.36	17.31
C. 1 col. x 3" (1 13/16" x 3")	27.17	26.49	25.13	23.77	22.42

CLASSIFIED WORD ADS:

Our "Classifieds" are thriving and heavily read. Base rates are 20¢ per word with discounts for multiple issues. Please print and punctuate - we are not responsible for errors due to long-hand and illegible copy. For more information see the classified ad form in the classified section.

RETAILER DIRECTORY:

This is a comprehensive listing of comic shops in and around the U.S. $3.00 a week leads buyers to your store by listing your name, address, phone number, and ten words of copy you choose. May be purchased in 26 or 52 week increments only. For more details see the Retailer Directory pages of this issue.

* 85 or 100-line screen recommended.
*Page size 9-13/16" x 16" (59 x 96½ picas.)
*Five 1-13/16" (11 picas) columns per page with one pica gutter between.
*One color and black $130.00
*Full color (4 color) $410.00 plus color separation costs) if separations are not provided by advertiser
*Based on availability.
*Minimum size color ad 24 inches.

GENERAL INFORMATION

A. PAYMENT: Ads must be accompanied by payment. You may pay with a check, money order, or credit card.

B. CREDIT CARDS: We will accept the following credit cards: VISA, MasterCard, MasterCard II, Barclay Card, Access Card, Eurocard, Diamond Card, Union Card.

C. DEADLINE: For all advertising is noon each Tuesday, unless otherwise stated on deadline card.

D. TERMS: Cash with copy only. All advertisers must provide reference information for the confidential use of the publisher should questions arise.

E. CONTRACT RATES are available for 6, 13, 26, or 52 consecutive issues. Contract rates apply to fulfillment of contract terms. Cancellation of a contract by the advertiser allows the publisher to reinvoice covered ads at the earned rate. This rate card is a part of the advertising contract.

F. MINORS are required to furnish a certificate of responsibility from their parent or guardian before their advertising can be accepted. Write for our convenient form.

G. ERRORS: Typewritten copy is recommended. The publisher is not responsible for errors resulting from longhand or illegible copy, or changes submitted by telephone. The publisher's liability for any error shall not exceed the cost of the space occupied by that error.

H. LAYOUT and design services are provided by Krause Publications for advertisers who do not submit camera-ready copy. Due to the creative and subjective nature of these services, credits will not be allowed for conceptual variations.

I. GRADING: Items offered in any ad must be properly described as to condition, conforming to the standards set forth in Overstreet's "The Comic Book Price Guide". Advertisers may also exercise the option of grading offerings by applying a unique personal system, providing the standards applied are detailed in the ad to avoid confusion.

J. RETURN PRIVILEGE: Except as otherwise specified in any ad, an advertiser must accept the return of any merchandise postmarked within five working days of its receipt by a customer.

K. P.O. BOX ADS are allowed, but permanent home address or place of business of the advertiser must be filed with the publisher before advertisements may be printed.

L. SPECIAL PAGE POSITIONS are available at a premium. Inquire for details.

M. ADVERTISING AGENCIES: There are no agency discounts.

N. CAMERA READY display ads qualify for a 15% discount. Copy must be ready for camera without additional paste-up or film work required. No charge for reductions, enlargements or mail response key change. Comics Trader, Collector's Showcase and classified word ads do not qualify for the camera ready discount.

O. SPACE RESERVATIONS available for camera ready ads only. Must be made prior to ad deadline. Reserved space must be paid for even if ad does not arrive on time.

P. PRE-PRINTED INSERTS are available in Comics Buyer's Guide. Inquire for additional information and technical specifications.

Q. CIRCULATION is throughout the United States and Canada by subscription and single copy sales by agents in shops and other outlets.

R. PROOF OF PUBLICATION: Tear sheets of new display ads are mailed to those advertisers requesting this service. We regret we cannot provide this service to classified advertisers.

S. NOTE: All advertising orders are accepted subject to the terms and provisions of the current rate card. Krause Publications, Inc., reserves the right to decline advertising or suspend advertising privileges for such periods of time as in its discretion it sees fit, for any reason whatsoever, irrespective of the validity of the reasons for such declination or suspension. The forwarding of an order is construed as an acceptance of all rates and conditions under which advertising is at the time sold. The publisher will not be bound by any conditions, printed or otherwise, appearing on any order for advertising space, billing instructions or copy instructions, which conflict with its policies. Advertisers and advertising agencies assume liability for all content (including text representation and illustrations) of advertisements printed, and also assume responsibility for any claims arising therefrom made against the publishers. It is the advertiser's or agency's responsibility to obtain appropriate releases on any item or individual pictured in their advertising. All agreements are subject to strikes, accidents, fire, acts of God, or other contingencies beyond the publisher's control. The publisher reserves the right to edit any advertising copy to conform with its standard advertising policies, and to reject any ad which in its opinion is unethical or objectionable for any reason. This publication does not guarantee and disclaims all knowledge of the right of seller or buyer to contract.

STORAGE AND DISPLAY BOXES

These boxes are strong enough to stand on. They are 275 lb. test corrugated and come with a white finish. The long comic boxes have four thicknesses of cardboard on the ends where the handle holes are for extra strong construction. Our boxes are easy to assemble—Need No Tape Or Glue. Bag's Unlimited boxes are the standard of the industry. DON'T SETTLE FOR SECOND BEST.
